

Contents

---

Acknowledgment .....	9
1 Introduction .....	13
1.1 Research background .....	13
1.2 Research question .....	27
1.3 Preliminary methodological concerns .....	28
1.4 Research map and chapter contours .....	43
 Section One: Thinking of space relationally: traveling epistemic frames and local context of knowing and doing
2 Conceptual elucidations
The epistemic frames and causality in relational spatial theories in the European context .....	47
2.1 Introduction .....	47
2.2 The absolute-relational divergence and epistemic frames .....	49
2.3 Newtonian space and its implications for modern social theory .....	57
2.4 When relational space is re-inserted into the post-modern social science .....	62
2.5 Summary .....	80
3 Accounts of social space in traditional Chinese thought .....	83
3.1 Introduction .....	83
3.2 The scope of Chinese literature and abductive reconstruction .....	84
3.3 The social subject, self-hood and self-other relations .....	87
3.4 Things, names and truth-conditions .....	111
3.5 Summary .....	122
4 Recontextualizing theoretical knowledge of space and the local context of knowing .....	125

4.1	Introduction .....	125
4.2	The 'spatial turn' in Chinese academia .....	126
4.3	Spatial knowledge recontextualized and the social context of knowing .....	134
4.4	Revised social constructivism and relational spatial knowledge on the ground .....	148
4.5	Summary .....	151
 Section Two: The retroductive empirical research on the spatial constitution of Beijing's artworld
5	Critical realism methodology and the study of an artworld .....	155
5.1	The polymorphic contemporary artworld in Beijing .....	155
5.2	Threefold research on Beijing's artworld under Critical Realist principles .....	157
5.3	Artworld as a space of political economy .....	164
5.4	Artworld as a space of everyday practices .....	191
5.5	The artworld in Caochangdi: a manifold analysis .....	217
6	Conclusion .....	251
6.1	Critical realism and compressed modernity studying space relationally with plural social-spatial theories .....	252
6.2	Thinking of space relationally in local context .....	255
References .....		259