

Contents

Foreword	7
1. Introduction	13
The return of the wolves to Germany	13
Living with wolves: coexistence as an affective affair	14
Living with wolves: an etho-ethnological approach	21
Methodology: an ethnographic approach to human-wolf coexistence	25
Plan of the book	29
2. Wolf Affects	33
Affective wolf bodies	33
Encounter I: playful affects	41
Encounter II: dangerous affects	47
Encounter III: playful or dangerous affects?	53
3. Wolf Agency	63
Wolf agency and coexistence	63
How the wolves returned to the Westerwald	69
Wolf agency in affective arrangements	83
4. Wolf Atmospheres	89
Wolf atmospheres and the ecology of fear	89
Rosenthal, Lusatia: a landscape of fear?	95
Towards a concept of wolf atmosphere	118
5. Wolf Feelings	121
The role of feelings, sentiments, and ethos	121
"LOVED. WANTED. SACRIFICED?": shepherds, wolves and sheep	123

"They have no respect!": hunters, wolves, and other wild animals	134
"They touch something deep inside me": wolf friends and wolves	149
6. Wolf Management as Affect Management	163
The affective dynamics of wolf management.....	163
Rationality as a guiding principle	169
"We take your concerns and fears seriously"	173
"You also have to stir the mood"	180
Letting off steam, taking pressure out of the system	187
EXCURSUS: affect management of wolves.....	190
7. Epilogue: towards a resting pulse of coexistence	199
Intentional and unintentional consequences of following wolves as method	199
The 'resting pulse of coexistence' and the 'queasy sometimes-feeling'	200
Coexistence with affect-guided thinking, sensibility and resilience	205
8. Appendix	209
9. Bibliography	213