

Contents

Acknowledgements 11

List of Abbreviations 15

Preface

The Fire – from Space 19

References 23

Introduction 25

Wasted spaces in the city 25

Waste in Mumbai 28

Waste-free development 33

Dumps as spaces of production 38

Waste(d) work 42

Going beyond binaries 46

Fieldwork at the margins 48

Aim of the book 51

Chapter scheme 52

References 55

Chapter 1

Finding value in Mumbai’s waste:
Trends and shifts in waste governance 63

History of Deonar: Contradictory representations
and development plans	64
Policy shifts towards a management approach to waste	70
Value in waste	74
Governance of Deonar	78
The waste of informal economy	82
References	86

Chapter 2

Waste in the city	91
Mumbai's waste network	93
Encountering the city at Deonar	103
The political economy of recycling	110
The technical know-how of sight and touch	115
Socio-spatial distribution of waste: Caste, class and the city	118
References	122

Chapter 3

The middle class and the miscreants	125
We pay taxes, give us clean air!	127
Public Interest Litigation	134
Accreting narratives of suspicion	137
Revocation of access	142
References	147

Chapter 4

Wall and boundaries: Reproduction of uncertainty	153
Exclusion at and from the periphery	161
The chasing act:
circulation of fear and anxiety	173
The photo-pass	178
References	185

Chapter 5

Struggles for reclaiming the dumping site	187
---	-----

Towards mobilisation	189
Right to waste	199
Everyday practices and right to the city?	203
Pehchaan – forging contacts	207
Money is not enough	211
Differentiated violence of the everyday	214
References	218
Epilogue	221
Returning to the field	221
Towards conclusions	225
Metonyms of waste	234
Waste as a spatial practice	238
References	242

Dedicated to all the waste workers of the world!

