

Being a Slave

*Histories and Legacies of European Slavery
in the Indian Ocean*

EDITED BY ALICIA SCHRIKKER
AND NIRA WICKRAMASINGHE

LEIDEN
UNIVERSITY PRESS

BEING A SLAVE

Critical, Connected Histories

Critical, Connected Histories is a series of works that explore unfamiliar social, cultural, and political issues that connect people of Asia, the Middle-East, Africa, America and Europe in the modern age. Building on trends in historiography that look at transnational flows and networks and foreground themes of circulation and connection, the series aims to break down artificial boundaries between regions that have long dominated traditional area studies and the discipline of history. It aims to build new ways of mapping these networks and journeys of people, ideas, and goods without omitting dynamics of power and the resilience of the state. The works in this series seek to sharpen the edges of such inquiries and challenge legal and imagined boundaries while examining the durability of their structures of power. In addition, the series cautions against the potential universalization of histories, and situates queries within different vantage points.

Multi-disciplinary in their approach, the books in this series draw from sources in multiple languages and media. They seek to expand our understanding and historical knowledge of events, processes, and movements. In denaturalizing the practices of historical writing, this series offers a forum for scholarship that is both theorised and empirically rich, and one that in particular addresses the violence and inequality of the modern ages as well as its promises.

Series Editors

Nira Wickramasinghe, Leiden University

Tsolin Nalbantian, Leiden University

Editorial Board

Fred Cooper, New York University

Engseng Ho, Duke University

Ilham Khuri-Makdissi, Northeastern University

Susan Pennybacker, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Bhavani Raman, Toronto University

Willem van Schendel, Amsterdam University

BEING A SLAVE

Histories and Legacies of European Slavery
in the Indian Ocean

Edited by

*Alicia Schrikker
and Nira Wickramasinghe*

LEIDEN UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cover design: Andre Klijsen

Cover illustration: Detail of Slaapkamer met zoon Jantje en slavinnetje Bietja, by Jan Brandes, 1784. Rijksmuseum, Amsterdam

Lay-out: Crius Group

ISBN 978 90 8728 344 5

e-ISBN 978 94 0060 376 9 (e-PDF)

e-ISBN 978 94 0060 377 6 (e-PUB)

NUR 680

© Alicia Schrikker and Nira Wickramasinghe / Leiden University Press, 2020

All rights reserved. Without limiting the rights under copyright reserved above, no part of this book may be reproduced, stored in or introduced into a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means (electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise) without the written permission of both the publisher and the editors of the book.

This book is distributed in North America by the University of Chicago Press (www.press.uchicago.edu).

Table of Contents

Contributors	7
List of Figures	13
Preface: Looking at Indian Ocean Multiple Forms of Slavery Françoise Vergès	15
Introduction: Enslaved in the Indian Ocean, 1700–1850 Alicia Schrikker and Nira Wickramasinghe	17
Part I Mobility, Emotions, Identities
1. Slavery, Ethnicity, and Identity in the Indian Ocean Colonial World: A Case Study of “Indian” Slaves on Mauritius Marina Carter	43
2. Small-Scale Slave Trade Between Ceylon and the Cape of Good Hope: From 1728 to 1737 Herman Tieken	61
3. Between Markets and Chains: An Exploration of the Experiences, Mobility and Control of Enslaved Persons in Eighteenth-Century South-West India Alexander Geelen, Bram van den Hout, Merve Tosun and Matthias van Rossum	75
4. Connected Lives: Experiences of Slavery in VOC Colombo Kate Ekama	99
5. Boenga van Johor: “My forced journey from Batavia to the Cape of Good Hope” Lodewijk J. Wagenaar	123

Part II Legacies, Memories, Absences

6. At Sea in the Archive: Slavery, Indenture and the Nineteenth-Century Indian Ocean Yvette Christiansë	149
7. Acts of Equality: Writing Autonomy, Empathy and Community in an Indonesian Slave Narrative Paul Bijl	183
8. Rituals of Rule: Infanticide and the Humanitarian Sentiment Pamela Scully	205
9. “Hoera, dit skip seil uit oos”: The Sea as a Site of Memory in the Folk Songs of the Enslaved Community and their Descendants at the Cape Anne Marieke van der Wal	233
10. The Materiality of Indian Ocean Slavery and Emancipation: The Challenges of Presence and Absence Sarah Longair	249
11. The Shadows of (Public) Recognition: Transatlantic Slavery and Indian Ocean Slavery in Dutch Historiography and Public Culture Guno Jones	269
Afterword Robert Ross	295
Bibliography	301
Index	325

Contributors

Paul Bijl teaches Comparative Literature at Utrecht University, the Netherlands. He has worked on cultural memory, photography, Indonesia, human rights, citizenship and post-colonial studies. His publications include: Emerging Memory: Photographs of Colonial Atrocity in Dutch Cultural Remembrance (Amsterdam: Amsterdam University Press, 2015) and he co-edited Appropriating Kartini – Colonial, National and Transnational Memories of an Indonesian Icon (Singapore: Institute of Southeast Asian Studies, 2020).

Marina Carter is an Honorary Research Fellow at the University of Edinburgh and is currently working as a freelance public historian and heritage consultant. She has published widely in the field of Indian Ocean diaspora studies, including: Voices from Indenture: Experiences of Indian Migrants in the British Empire (London: Leicester University Press, 1996) and she has co-authored with Khal Torabully Coolitude: An Anthology of the Indian Labour Diaspora (London: Anthem, 2002).

Yvette Christiansë is Professor of Africana Studies and English Literature at Barnard College, New York. Her publications include Toni Morrison: An Ethical Poetics (New York: Fordham University Press, 2013). She is the author of the historical novel Unconfessed (Other Press, 2006; Kwela Books, 2007; Querido, 2007), and of the poetry collections Castaway (Durham NC: Duke University Press, 1999). She is currently writing a book on representations of Liberated Africans or Recaptives between 1807 and 1886. Her research has taken her to archives in the Indian and Atlantic Oceans, in the USA and within Africa.

Kate Ekama is post-doctoral fellow in History at Stellenbosch University, South Africa. Her research on slavery in the Indian Ocean focuses on Colombo and the Cape, and spans the VOC and British periods. Her publications include “Just Deserters: Runaway Slaves from the VOC Cape, c. 1700-1800,” in Desertion in the Early Modern World: A Comparative History (London: Bloomsbury, 2016) and “Precarious Freedom: Manumission in Eighteenth-Century Colombo, Sri Lanka” (Journal of Social History, forthcoming). Kate Ekama’s current research deals with the financial underpinnings of slavery in the nineteenth-century Cape Colony.

Alexander Geelen is a PhD candidate at the International Institute of Social History in Amsterdam, the Netherlands. He is part of the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research (NWO) project “Resilient Diversity”. In his research project, called “Bordering up, regulating mobility through passes walls and guards”, he researches how social background determined one’s mobility. He has recently co-authored the following publications: “A Tale of Two Johannas: Gatekeeping, Mobilities, and Marriages in Cochin and Amsterdam” (2019) Early Modern Women: An Interdisciplinary Journal; and Testimonies of Enslavement. Sources on Slavery from the Indian Ocean (London: Bloomsbury, 2020).

Bram van den Hout is Junior Researcher at the International Institute of Social History in Amsterdam, the Netherlands. His fields of interests are slavery, piracy and violence in the Dutch East India Company and exploring the intersection between video games and history. He co-authored with Rossum, M. van, et al., Testimonies of Enslavement – Sources on Slavery from the Indian Ocean World. (London: Bloomsbury, 2020) which presents translated transcripts of VOC court cases dealing with themes of enslavement and “enslaveability”. And he has co-edited with C.E. Ariese, et al., Return to the Interactive Past (Leiden: Sidestone Press, 2020).

Guno Jones is Research Associate at Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam (Amsterdam Centre for Migration and Refugee Law). As a part of the research project entitled “Regulating Mixed Intimacies in Europe”, he currently conducts research on the regulation and construction of “Mixed Intimacies in European Law”. His main research interests include citizenship, migration and the nation in the Netherlands, Belgium and the UK; World War II Heritage in the Netherlands and its former colonies; (the afterlives of) colonialism and slavery in the Netherlands.

Sarah Longair is a Senior Lecturer in the History of Empire at the University of Lincoln, UK. Her research focuses upon the British Empire and the Indian Ocean world through the study of visual and material culture. She has published, among others, Cracks in the Dome: Fractured Histories of Empire in the Zanzibar Museum, 1897-1964 (London & New York: Routledge, 2015) and co-edited with John McLeer, Curating Empire Museums and the British Imperial Experience (Manchester: Manchester University Press, 2012, 2016).

Robert Ross is emeritus professor in African History at Leiden University. His research has generally concentrated on the history of the Cape Colony, though with occasional excursions into the history of clothing and material culture. His major publications include Cape of Torments: Slavery and Resistance in South Africa (London: Routledge & Kegan Paul, 1983); A Concise History of South Africa (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1999), Status and Respectability at the Cape of Good Hope: A Tragedy of Manners (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1999) and The Borders of Race in Colonial South Africa: The Kat River Settlement, 1829-1856 (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2014), and he is the chief editor of both volumes of the Cambridge History of South Africa (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2010, 2011).

Matthias van Rossum is Senior Researcher in the field of Global Labour History at the International Institute of Social History in Amsterdam, the Netherlands. He specializes in the history of coerced labour, diversity, conflict and social strategies in the early modern period. His main publications include Werkers van de wereld. Globalisering, arbeid en interculturele ontmoetingen tussen Aziatische en Europese zeelieden in dienst van de VOC, 1600-1800 (Hilversum: Verloren, 2014) and he has co-edited with Titas Chakraborty and Marcus Rediker A Global History of Runaways: Workers, Mobility, and Capitalism 1600-1850 (Berkeley CA: University of California Press, 2019).

Alicia Schrikker is Senior Lecturer in colonial and global history at Leiden University. She works on everyday colonialism in the Indian Ocean throughout the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, through a focus on sites and moments of exchange and interaction. She has co-edited with Jeroen Touwen Promises and Predicaments. Trade and Entrepreneurship in Colonial and independent Indonesia in the 19th and 20th Centuries (Singapore: Singapore University Press, 2015). and with Carolien Stolte World History – a Genealogy.

Private Conversations with World Historians, 1996-2016. (Leiden: Leiden University Press, 2017). Her most recent publications deal with socio-legal history, slavery, historic disaster and colonial mentality in the Indian Ocean.

Pamela Scully is Professor of Women's, Gender and Sexuality Studies, Professor of African Studies, and Vice Provost of Undergraduate Affairs at Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia. Her research interests focus on comparative women's and gender history. Her latest book is Writing Transnational History, co-authored with Professor Fiona Paisley (London & New York: Bloomsbury Academic, 2019). Other books include Sara Baartman and the Hottentot Venus: A Ghost Story and a Biography, co-authored with Clifton Crais (Princeton NJ: Princeton University Press, 2009, 2010); Liberating the Family? Gender and Slave Emancipation in the Rural Western Cape, South Africa, 1823-1853 (Portsmouth NH: Heinemann, 1997).

Herman Tiekens taught Sanskrit and Tamil at the Kern Institute of Leiden University, the Netherlands. His main research interest is in the classical literatures of these two languages. The eighteenth-century Ondaatje letters were for him a foray into unknown territory. He has published widely on Tamil literary culture. He recently published an edition and annotated translation of the Ondaatje letters: Between Colombo and the Cape. Letters in Tamil, Dutch and Sinhala, Sent to Nicolaas Ondaatje from Ceylon, Exile at the Cape of Good Hope (1728-1737). (Delhi: Manohar, 2015).

Merve Tosun is Junior Researcher at the International Institute of Social History in Amsterdam, the Netherlands. She studies the history of slavery, corvée labour and strategies of local workers in territories under the Dutch East India Company. She has co-authored the following upcoming publications: Testimonies of Enslavement: Sources on Slavery from the Indian Ocean World (London: Bloomsbury, 2020) and "On The Run: Runaway Slaves and their Social Networks in Eighteenth Century Cochin", Special Issue (2020), Journal of Social History.

Françoise Vergès is a decolonial feminist activist, a public educator, writer and independent curator. She is the co-founder of the Decolonizing the Arts association, Paris. Her Réunionnese background opened her to the entanglements of the Indian Ocean world – south-south exchanges, slavery, migrations, anti-colonialism, anti-imperialism, creolization and current flows and conflicts. She has held teaching positions in the UK, France and the USA, been the president of the French national committee for the memories and history of slavery, and directed the scientific programme for a post-colonial museum in Réunion. Her many publications include: Abolir l'esclavage. Une utopie coloniale, les ambiguïtés d'une politique humanitaire (Paris: Albin Michel, 2001).

Lodewijk J. Wagenaar is affiliated guest at the University of Amsterdam, the Netherlands. There he has lectured in the History Department since 1999 on a wide range of subjects related to the relation between Europe and Asia during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, focusing on the history of Sri Lanka during the colonial occupation. In 1994 he published his micro-historical study of eighteenth-century Galle: Galle, VOC Vestiging in Ceylon (Amsterdam: Bataafsche Leeuw, 1994). His recent publications include Cinnamon & Elephants: Sri Lanka and the Netherlands from 1600 (Rijksmuseum country series Nijmegen: Van Tilt, 2016).

Anne Marieke van der Wal-Rémy is Assistant Professor of African History and International Studies at Leiden University, the Netherlands. Her main interests are the history of South Africa, the Indian Ocean and the Slave Trade, and Memory and Subaltern Studies. She has worked on memory and slavery studies, post-colonial critique and modernity/counter-modernity, and has published on the commemorative folk songs of the Cape Coloured community including, "Slave Orchestras and Rainbow Balls, Colonial Culture and Creolisation at the Cape of Good Hope, 1750-1850", in Dieuwke Van der Poel, Louis Peter Grijp and Wim van Anrooij (eds.), Identity, Intertextuality, and Performance in Early Modern Song Culture (Leiden: Brill, 2016).

Nira Wickramasinghe is a historian and Chair/Professor of Modern South Asian Studies at Leiden University, where she is also Academic Director of Research at the Leiden University Institute for Area Studies (LIAS). Her most recent books are Sri Lanka in the Modern Age. A History (New York: Oxford University Press, 2015) and Metallic Modern. Everyday Machines in Colonial Sri Lanka (Oxford: Berghahn Press, 2014). Her forthcoming book, Slave in a Palanquin. Colonial Servitude and Resistance in Sri Lanka, will be published by Columbia University Press in 2020.

List of Figures

Figure 2.1. A letter dated 3 November 1730 from Ondaatje's brother-in-law, Christoffel Tomisz.
Source: Western Cape Archives and Record Service, Cape Town, SA.	62
Figure 2.2. The cover of a letter dated 12 January 1737.
Source: Western Cape Archives and Record Service, Cape Town, SA.	63
Figure 3.1. Map of Cochin.
Source: National Archives of the Netherlands, Catalogus Leupe.	85
Figure 4.1. Late eighteenth-century map of Colombo.
Source: National Archives, The Hague, Verzameling Buitenlandse Kaarten Leupe, Archive number 4. VEL, Inventory number 953.	104
Figure 4.2. Detail of the eighteenth-century map of Colombo.
Source: National Archives, The Hague, Verzameling Buitenlandse Kaarten Leupe, Archive number 4. VEL, Inventory number 953.	105
Figure 5.1. Silhouette portrait of Flora, enslaved maid of the Lutheran minister Jan Brandes. Sketch Book of Jan Brandes.
Source: Rijksmuseum, Amsterdam.	127
Figure 6.1. Two pages from HMS Columbine 's register of Liberated Africans landed at Port Victoria on 7 October 1871.
Source: Seychelles National Archives.	162
Figure 6.2. Detail from HMS Columbine 's register.
Source: Seychelles National Archives.	164

Figure 7.1. Portrait of Wange Hendrikk Richard van Bali. Etching by Ernst Willem Bagelaar.

Source: Rijksmuseum, object number RP-P-BI-245. 185

Figure 11.1. Cattle and Colonized for Sale.

Source: exhibited image of Sumatra Post, 1902 (photograph by author on location). 270