

Contents

- 1 Introduction | 7
- 2 Subjectivisation as theoretical framework | 17
- 3 Methodology | 37

PART 1: KNOWING ABOUT GENES

- 4 Genes in the womb | 59
- 5 Coming into being | 75

PART 2: MAKING BIOSCIENTISTS ACCOUNTABLE

- 6 New conditions for the sciences of life | 99
- 7 ELSA as a heritage of public controversies | 109
- 8 Public accountability of newborn screening | 121
- 9 Ethical boundary work | 139
- 10 Subjectivisation of bioscientists | 155

PART 3: BEING A PART OF IT

- 11 Science, politics, and the public | 177
- 12 Constituting oneself as a researcher | 197
- 13 Negotiating who ELSA researchers are | 241

CONCLUSIONS

- 14 Methodological challenges | 287
- 15 Why science policy context matters | 315

Bibliography | 331

