

Contents

Acknowledgements	11
Introduction to the Book	13
The Structure of This Book	14
The Structure of the Text	17
The Design of the Book	20
The Book Situated at the Margins of Practical Theology	21

Part I A Situated Pastoral Theology

Portraits and Handbooks	27
Karl Rahner and the Deformed Steel Beam at Herder	33
Futurology	34
Planning	35
Building	37
A Point of Culmination	39
Steel and Brick	41
Bent and Broken	43
Bonnie Miller-McLemore and Vanderbilt's Tumbleweed	45
A Point of Culmination	48
Tumbleweed	49
Constructive Fragments	52

Current Projects on Embodied, Localised Thing-Theology	55
Attention to Details	58
This Habilitation as One Particular Lens	61

Part II

The Electric Laboratory

An Introduction to a Theology of Material and Space	65
A Spatial Turn with Material Implications in Systematic Theology	66
A Spatial Turn with Material Implications in Practical Theology	69
Universal Service: The Cathedral of Bell	71
Laboratory Architecture as a Company's Vision to Shoot a Man to the Moon Every Day..	72
The Architect as the Almighty Designer	77
Martin Heidegger: Designing and Building as Part of the Conditio Humana	80
Failure and the Power of Wonder	83
The Unspeakable in the Philosophy and Poetry of Jean Wahl	85
An Artistic Intervention: Richard Learoyd's Crashed, Burned, and Rolled	88
The Utopian Potential of the Material	89
Material History: The Case of the World Fair of 1867	92
A New View on Science: Laboratory Life	95
Software as Part of a Dynamic Materiality	97
A Networked Model of the World	99
A Christian Perspective	103
An Exegetical Exhortation for an Engagement with the Material World	104
Giorgio Agamben's Homo Sacer Project as a Subversive Praxis	106
The End of a Totalitarian Vision	113
The Corporate Campus Lives on Today	114

Part III Social Laboratories

From Central Planning to a New Sensibility	119
Addressing the Needs of a City: An Artistic Primer	119
Addressing the Needs of a City: A Planner's Perspective	123
Addressing Spiritual Needs: An Architect's Perspective	125
A Sense for the Greater Good through Building: An Architectural Perspective.....	128
A Sense for the Greater Good through Building: A Parliamentarian Perspective	132
New Strategies for Materially Sensitive People	135
The Architect: Material and Social Self-Formation	135
The Designer: Subversively Changing the World through its Products	140
The Community Organiser: Listening to People's Voices as Co-Creators	142
Examples of a Material-Human-Sensitive Church	147
Getting Hands-on in the North West Bronx: How a Church Fights for Spatial Justice from within the World of Things	147
Social Forming in Rif: A Church Rich in Material and Social Awareness	152
NWBCCC and Rif As New Ways for Pastoral Planning	156

Part IV A Situated Church Community

Concrete Communities	161
A Definitional Conundrum: Parish or Community?	161
Concrete Typologies.....	166
Beginnings.....	166
Church Communities Today: Three Alternative Visions	171
Endings	171
Continuations	173
New Beginnings	177

Church Communities in the Future: Church Without a Home	189
Practical Theological Implications Beyond the Concrete	193
Conclusion	197
An Artistic Intervention: Thing Photography	197
Churches as Open Artworks and Museums for the Future	200
Literature	203
Unpublished Literature and Websites	217
Interviews and Other Material	219