

Acknowledgments

I would like to thank Philip Magness for getting me interested in this topic. Sebastian Page and Reyes Mabasa helped with the French translations, and Dries Glorieux took a second look at some hard to read lines in Dutch. A summer research fellowship from the Institute for Humane Studies enabled me to travel to the Netherlands in the summer of 2012. I want to thank the archivists at the Netherlands' National Archive in the Hague for providing access to these papers, and for allowing me to photograph them without filling in too much paperwork. I must also thank my friend Dennis Bos for making a follow-up visit to the archives on my behalf, after my departure from the country. I would like to thank the journal Civil War History for allowing me to reproduce some of my thoughts from an earlier article with them. Last but not least, I want to thank the editors of this series for their thorough work in improving my text and translations.

