ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

THE RESEARCH FOR this book has been supported by various individuals and institutions. First and foremost, I thank my home institution, the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and the Department of the History of Art, for having generously provided the time and other critical resources, including subvention funds, required to bring this book to fruition. Indeed, it is also funds from the Department of the History of Art at the University of Michigan that made possible the Open Access publication of this book. I also thank Dumbarton Oaks for having invited me to reside there as a Senior Visiting Fellow in the fall of 2022. That interlude was immensely helpful on an intellectual level and much enjoyed at a congenial level. I am also grateful for having been invited to present my work on the bucolic mode at different venues and the feedback I received therefrom. Accordingly, I thank the audiences at the Medieval Studies University Seminar at Columbia University, New York, at the Henri Pirenne Institute at the University of Ghent, Belgium, at the Mary Jaharis Center for Byzantine Art and Culture, at Dumbarton Oaks, Washington, DC, at the Department of the History of Art, University of Michigan, and at the International Medieval Congress at Leeds in 2023.

Many colleagues have engaged in formal and informal discussions with me about subjects related to this book. They are William Adler, Thomas Arentzen, Tina Bawden, Peter Boudreau, Kevin Carr, Kristoffel Demoen, Christiane Gruber, Nikos Kontogiannis, Lihong Liu, Justin Mann, Przemysław Marciniak, Brendan McMahon, Bryan Miller, Margaret Mullett, Andrea Nanetti, Ingela Nilsson, Glenn Peers, Tristan Schmidt, Neslihan Şenocak, Alice-Mary Talbot, Günder Varinlioğlu, and Lev Weitz. I am grateful to Allison Grenda for having sent me some materials I needed from the Byzantine and Christian Museum in Athens, Greece. Achim Timmermann and Lihong Liu kindly introduced me to scholarship on winds and windy matters. Finally, I am indebted to Tina Bawden for many productive conversations about human-animal interfaces and her insights regarding my writing.

I wish to thank Anna Henderson for her vigorous advocacy on behalf of this book. I also deeply appreciate Tania Colwell, Laura Macy, and Martine Maguire-Weltecke for their ready assistance with its editorial aspects.

No idyll in my life is complete without my family and loved ones, many of whom have supported me right from my childhood, and some of whom (such as my husband and my children, Preisha and Prabuddha) have joined me a bit later on the journey. Despite the occasional mayhem they bring, the peace of knowing that these people are with me in person and/or in spirit is immeasurable. I dedicate this book to all of them, with affection.
