

Contents

List of Acronyms	13
Glossary of Spanish and Aymara Terms	15
Acknowledgements	17
Note on the use of names	18
Introduction	19
Theoretical framework	25
New perspectives on blackness and indigeneity in Latin America	26
Afro-indigenous multiculturalisms	27
Afrobolivians and indigenous people in a mestizo nation	28
Emerging Afrobolivianity: articulations, performances and translations	29
Articulated Afrobolivianity and interethnic relations	31
Laws, rights and subjectivities	33
Legalizing identity and plurinational ID-ology	35
Overview of chapters	39
Chapter 1: Encountering Afrobolivianity	43
Some remarks on the particularities of Afrobolivian demography and social geography	43
Arriving in Cala Cala	47
Researching Afrobolivianity in Cala Cala	50
Roles and perspectives in the field	51
Researching Afrobolivianity beyond Cala Cala	53
Panorama of Afrobolivian organizations	56
Ethnographic fieldwork in times of ID-ology	58
Chapter 2: The Afrobolivian Presence in Bolivia, Then and Now	61
“Are there black people in Bolivia?” Invisibility and beyond	61
The regional context: the Yungas in Bolivia’s cultural geography	64
Afrobolivians in colonial and early republican society	66

Haciendas , the National Revolution and land reform in the Yungas.....	68
Cultural revitalization and emerging ethnic politics in the multicultural age	71
From multiculturalism to plurinationality	74
Chapter 3: “We are los Afros de Cala Cala”	81
Being Afro in Cala Cala	84
Geographical aspects of community in Cala Cala	87
“The AfroBolivian grandfathers” (“ los abuelos afros ”): From peones to sayañeros	90
Kinship beyond Cala Cala: linking AfroBolivians throughout the Yungas	95
Translocal kinship: Cala Cala’s urban ‘diaspora’	96
The changing tides of “ lo Afro ” in and beyond Cala Cala.....	98
From kinship ties to “ La Famiya Afro ”: kinship, ethnicity and collectivity	102
Los “Afros de Cala Cala” in context: migration, intra-community conflict and cross-cutting ties	104
Chapter 4: Cala Cala beyond “lo Afro”	107
“ Cumplir función social ”: becoming a member of the comunidad through practice.....	107
Local traditions and identidad Yungueña in Cala Cala	110
The coca economy: cooperation, cohesion and the distribution of labor	115
Growing coca and the social significance of the exchange of labor	115
Debates in the coca field	121
Law and politics as seen from the coca field: “ hoy en día, todo es ley ”	123
Raíces Africanas and Radio AfroBoliviana	125
Plurinationality as “ discurso ajeno ”	127
Mobilizing Cala Cala: ADEPCOCA and the Ley General de la Coca	128
Chapter 5: The Changing Meanings of Ethnoracial Identifications in Cala Cala	131
“ No se juntan así nomás ”: ethnoracial identifications and individual social relations	133
“ Es bien abierto por más Aymara que sea ”: ethnoracial stereotypes	134
Economic individualization and the weakening of the cocalero community.....	137
Cultural revitalization and the ID-ological force of the Constitution	139
The aftermath of legal recognition: “We have to think about identity”	140
The sindicato as an “Aymara affair”	144
Reinterpreting history and inequality through an AfroBolivian lens	146
Entangled horizons of community in Cala Cala	148
Chapter 6: What It Means to Be Afro	153
“ Yo soy doble Afro-indígena, pero me siento afro ”	154
Articulating AfroBolivianity: “ lo Afro ” and “ lo indígena ” in Bolivia	156
AfroBolivians as the people of the Yungas.....	158
AfroBolivians as part of the regional and global diaspora	159

Racialized notions of Afrobolivianity	164
Race and ethnicity in Latin America.....	166
Negotiating Afrobolivianity	170
Mamanis negros y Angolas indígenas : migration, kinship and the perceived perils of racial mixture.....	170
“Can just any white person dance here?” – An urban perspective on phenotype, ancestry and legitimate belonging	174
‘Social blackening’ and the appeal of “ lo Afro ”	176
Conclusion: Race, identity politics and the invisibility of “ Afro-Aymara ”	177
On (the invisibility of) Afro-Aymaras	178
Afroliviano as negro	180
Afroliviano beyond negro	181
Chapter 7: “We are Culture, not Color”	183
Saya as cultural performance	184
Debating history, authenticity and cultural change: saya de antes and saya de ahora	188
Saya as a strategy of visibilization.....	191
Saya as the emblem of ‘lite’ Afrobolivianity.....	193
Cataloging ‘culture,’ and sketching the contours of a pueblo	195
The Rey Afroliviano in context.....	197
Arbitrariness, political manipulation and the Tocaña bias	200
The Tocaña bias	203
Currículo regionalizado del pueblo Afroliviano : cataloging the essence of a people	206
Experts, categories and ‘culture’	208
Traditional knowledge, coevalness and plurinational anxiety	209
Making the group, freezing the differences	211
Conclusion	212
Chapter 8: “El Movimiento Afroliviano”	215
Rediscovering saya : Coroico, 1982	218
Visibilizing the community (“ Visibilizar la comunidad ”).....	222
Reclaiming saya : authenticity, ownership, appropriation.....	225
Migration, discrimination and the struggle to consolidate the movimiento	228
Contextualizing and decentering the foundational narrative	230
The pitfalls of folklorization and the shift “from performance to politics”.....	232
From negros to Afrolivianos/Afrodescendientes	235
From folklore to cultural citizenship	237
CADIC and the discourse of development.....	238
Talleres (workshops) as spaces of articulation	240
Conclusion	242

Chapter 9: Rights, Recognition, and New Forms of Organization	245
“500 years give us rights!” Framing political demands as rights to be claimed	247
AfroBolivians “on their way to the Constituent Assembly”	248
AfroBolivians in the Constituent Assembly: formal absence, changing alliances and the ever-present saya	251
The aftermath of recognition: el pueblo Afroboliviano as the subject of collective rights	253
Re-articulations of AfroBolivianity and the dynamics of pueblo -ization	254
The Consejo Nacional Afroboliviano (CONAFRO): the organizational response to the pueblo discourse.....	258
Envisioning CONAFRO and the logic of movimientos sociales as a form of governance	258
Structural and ideological basics or: what it means to be an “ ente matriz ”	261
Strategies and achievements	263
The limits of recognition.....	266
Conclusion	269
Chapter 10: Plurinational AfroBolivianity on the Ground and Built Identity Politics	273
Origins and background of the project.....	275
Who should participate? Or: ethnoracial particularities and the limits of Cala Cala as a community	277
What are we going to show the tourists? Or: cataloging culture and the conceptual space of AfroBolivianity in the Yungas.....	281
Interpreting AfroBolivian culture.....	284
Reifying AfroBolivianity through infrastructure: the Centro de Interpretación as built iden- tity politics.....	288
Conclusion	290
Conclusion: “Eso de lo Afro, es un caminar”	295
Bibliography	301
Newspaper articles	321
Laws and documents	323
Bolivian Laws.....	323
International conventions, declarations and documents	323

Para mis Agentes del Caos

