

Contents

List of Tables, Figures, and Abbreviations | 9

Acknowledgements | 11

Introduction: How We Think of Migration and Mobility | 13

PART I: A PROPOSITION: EXAMINING MIGRANTS' MOBILITIES THROUGH BIOGRAPHIES

1 From “Classical” and “New” Approaches in Migration Studies to the “Mobilities Perspective” on Migration | 27

1.1 “Classical” Approaches in Migration Studies | 28

Assimilation | 28

Integration | 31

Multiculturalism | 36

What happens in the Country of Arrival? | 39

1.2 “New” Approaches in Migration Studies | 41

(Migrant) Transnationalism | 42

Diaspora | 47

Cosmopolitanism | 48

What happens in the Country of Arrival, in the Country of Origin, and/or in other Destinations? | 52

1.3 Mobility Studies as a New Research Perspective on Migration | 54

The “Mobilities Paradigm” | 54

Conceptualizing (Im)Mobility | 57

The Relation of Migration Studies and Mobility Studies | 61

2 (Im)Mobile Individuals: Studying Their Biographies | 67

- 2.1 Approaching the Field: Methodology, Methods,
and Sampling Strategies | 68
 - Accessing Mobilities through Biographical Research | 68
 - Autobiographical Interviewing | 72
 - Research Design and Sampling Strategies | 74
- 2.2 Leaving the Field: Sample, Narratives,
and the Construction of a Typology | 78
 - Characteristics of the Sample | 78
 - Analyzing Biographical Narratives | 80
 - Constructing an Empirically Grounded Typology | 81

PART II: PATTERNS OF (IM)MOBILITY: READING LIVES AND INTERPRETING BIOGRAPHICAL NARRATIVES

Excursus on the Country of Origin: Poland | 89

A Note on my Respondents' Life Stories | 99

3 Immobility: The Immobile Pattern of Mobility | 101

- 3.1 Anja: "The One Who Talks about Multiculturalism
but Practices Assimilation" | 102
 - Sense of (no) Belonging? Aversive Discourses
and Dark Imaginaries of Poland | 103
 - Assimilationist Behaviour in a Multicultural Context | 107
 - Antagonisms and Aversive Mobility | 111
- 3.2 Sandra: "The One Who Teaches Her Parents
How to Speak German" | 113
 - When Kids Educate their Parents: Collective Integration through
Reversed Family Roles | 114
 - About Successful and Unsuccessful Integration: The Effect of the Social Milieu | 118
 - Reintroducing the Polish Language after
Successful Integration? | 123
 - Cultural Ambiguity in a Settled Life | 127
- 3.3 Janusz, Part I: "The One Who Speaks Polish Worse than
His Brother" | 134
 - Two Educational Models in a Bi-Ethnic Family | 134
 - Marginalizing "Polishness" | 138
- 3.4 Immobility: Incorporation, Aversion, and Sedentariness | 140

4 Transmobility: The Transnational Pattern of Mobility | 145

- 4.1 Janusz, Part II: “The One Who Speaks Polish Better than His Brother” | 146
 - New Language, New Possibilities | 146
 - Transnationalising Relationships | 151
 - The Mobile Search for a Profession | 154
 - Cultural Irritations under the Condition of Mobility | 159
 - Self-Acknowledgement through Language Acquirement | 163
- 4.2 Oscar: “The One Who Could be Anything in a Weird Way” | 165
 - Aristocratic Nobility and Diasporic Mobility | 166
 - A Limited Scope of Montreal: Growing up within the Polish Community | 169
 - Broadening the Scope: Experiencing Montreal’s Diversity | 174
 - From Canada’s Heterogeneity to Poland’s Homogeneity | 181
 - The Simplicity of European Mobility | 187
 - Looking Back and Looking Ahead | 190
- 4.3 Malinka, Part I: “The One Who Wants to Emigrate” | 193
 - Transnational “Motherhood” Reversed: Living a Transnational “Childhood” | 194
 - Between Regret and Integration | 199
 - Perceiving “Origin” in a Transnational Context | 202
 - Immigration or Mobility? | 203
- 4.4 Transmobility: Cross-Border Ties and Bi-or Multilocal Mobility | 213

5 Cosmobility: The Cosmopolitan Pattern of Mobility | 219

- 5.1 Malinka, Part II: “The One Who Does Not Want to Emigrate” | 220
 - Mobility as a Strategy for Disappearing | 220
 - Studying, Commuting, Going Abroad, and Travelling | 224
 - Slowing Down: From Hypermobility back to Sedentariness? | 230
- 5.2 Francis: “The One Who Just Does Not Live in the Same Place” | 236
 - Roots of Mobility in an Aristocratic Diaspora | 237
 - Transnationality under the Condition of Mobility | 241
 - “Polishness” and the Construction of Social Class | 246
 - A Sporty Souvenir from Kenya | 247
 - New Possibilities in a New Place | 250
 - Contextual Self-Understanding and Travelling Origins | 252
- 5.3 Cosmobility: Open Mobility and the “Homing-Effect” | 254

PART III: MAKING SENSE OF MOVEMENTS: TOWARDS A “MOBILITIES PERSPECTIVE” IN MIGRATION STUDIES

6 Revisiting Migration through the Patterns of (Im)Mobility | 261

- 6.1 Reading Migration between Experiences and Theories | 262
 - Mobility as an Element of the Past: Sedentary
Social Advancement and Assimilation | 262
 - Mobility as Bi-Locality: Mobile Paths of Integration and (Migrant) Transnationalism | 269
 - Mobility as a Way of Life: Mobile Engagement with the World and Cosmopolitanism | 275
- 6.2 The Spatial, Temporal, and Social Dimensions of (Im)Mobility | 282
 - Modalities of the Three Dimensions | 282
 - The Analytical Circle of Sociological Dimensions | 285
- 6.3 The Continuity of (Im)Mobility | 287
 - Reassessing Migration Theories | 287
 - The Contribution of the Study to Current Scholarly Debates | 290

Conclusion: How to Rethink Migration and Mobility | 293 References | 297