

Contents

Acknowledgements	11
List of Greek words and acronyms used in the text	13
Preface	15
1. Methodology issues and theoretical starting points	21
2. Introduction: “Transformation” and “Petty Bourgeoisism”
Greek class distinctiveness and theories of “underdevelopment”	33
2.1 Discourses of development and reconstruction	34
2.1.1 “Underdevelopment” in Greece	39
2.1.2 Middle class as parasitic and extra-institutional mobility	41
2.1.3 On petty bourgeoisism : from criticism to connotations	41
2.2 The analytical category of “class” and its use in the post-war Greek context	48
2.2.1 Without a bourgeoisie	50
2.2.2 Ideotype of Greek petty bourgeoisism	55
2.3 Fieldwork in Kato Toumba	59
2.4 Modernization, urbanization and ideological “civilizing”: an anthropological reading	63
2.5 Space and objects in the discourses and practices of the noikokyraioi from Thessaloniki	66
3. Poverty, refugeeism and material adaptation
Homes and people in a dynamic relationship	71
3.1 The paradigm of Thessaloniki	76
3.2 About the material recognition of refugeeism: the first home	78
3.2.1 Poverty, deprivation and strategies to recover a lost world	79
3.2.2 Short personal and family stories about homes and belongings. Stories of extreme poverty and refugeeism	82
3.2.3 Efforts of integration and adaptation in the first post-war years	98

3.2.4	Antiparochi as miraculous adaptation	104
3.3	The distinction: the “good homes” of the city center	112
3.3.1	Speaking with a main informant on the fringes of the city center	116
3.3.2	“Good homes” and architectural heritage of the city: conflicting public discourses	120
3.3.3	Living in the center: life history	123
4.	Things in post-war home: modernity, innovation and becoming a noikokyra/noikokyris	135
4.1	From acting subjects to the interaction of subjects-objects	140
4.1.1	Strategies and practices of integration into a “ noikokyremeno ” lifestyle. The case of Maria from Toumba	143
4.1.2	Gender-based performances of the modern. The case of Vasiliki from the second generation of women from Toumba	158
4.1.3	Homes of “ prokopi ” and “dignity”. Social relations intermediated by material things	166
4.1.4	The concept of “noble” and “aristocratic” as a normative decoration standard in the homes of noikokyratoi	172
4.2	The counterexample: “peasants” and “migrants from Germany” in Toumba of “eastern suburbs”	182
5.	“Modern” state, “noikokyratoi” citizens and local shades of “corruption”	201
5.1	DEI civilization	202
5.1.1	“In the 1960s, I already had a dishwasher and a mixer, my sweetheart”. Objectifications of the “modern” in the example of Antigoni	213
5.2	Employees versus employees: daily stories of bureaucratic disobedience in post-war DEI	226
5.2.1	Settlement of refugees or corruption? The production of benefactor citizen through representations of practices of trespassing of public property	235
5.2.2	“Settlement” of the “benefactor” citizen and public interest	245
5.2.3	The social reproduction of noikokyratoi s through practices of trespassing of public property in the post-war context of reconstruction	251
Conclusions	269
References	277
Archives	298
Greek TV series	298
Journalistic articles	298

Filmography	299
Electronic resources	299
Albums	300
List of Figures	301

