

Contents

Note on Authorship | 7

Preface | 9

Chapter One: Security in the Anthropocene | 13

Bringing deep time into security | 19

The Pleistocene | 20

The Holocene | 23

The Anthropocene | 26

Security in the Anthropocene | 31

Chapter Two: More-Than-Human Worlds | 37

Lineages | 41

The return of the Great Man | 45

Posthuman security | 49

Safety politics in the posthuman age | 56

Conclusion | 60

Chapter Three: Postnatural Security | 63

Creating nature | 66

 Nature as purity | 68

 Nature as instrumental value | 70

 Nature as threat | 74

Niche construction and postnatural security | 78

Conclusion | 83

Chapter Four: The Horizon of Holocene Security | 85

Confronting the new Human Age: securitization and the horizon of

 Holocene Security | 88

Reading Schmitt in the Anthropocene | 94
The dawn of Anthropocene security | 97
Conclusion | 105

Chapter Five: Towards a Security of Care in the Anthropocene | 109

The impossible past | 109
Can security be careful? | 117
Care and the Anthropocene | 123
The limits of care | 126
Risk and uncertainty | 127
Towards a micro-politics of care | 131
Conclusion | 139

Chapter Six: Conclusions | 141

Constructing the World | 142
Defenses and new directions | 145
Omissions and critiques | 145
Future directions | 151

References | 157

Register | 189