

Contents

---

Acknowledgement .....	9
Introduction: 'The Outsider Within'—Intersection of Self-Reflexivity and Critical Research .....	11
Background of the Study: A Critique of Black Diasporic Thought —Paul Gilroy and Michelle M. Wright in Conversation .....	19
1. Phenomenology of Power: Black Feminism and Adjacent Theories .....	31
1.1 Bodies that do not matter .....	34
1.2 Butler, Psychoanalytic Theory, and the Becoming of the Black Female Subject ....	47
1.3 Misogynoir: The Paradox of Black Women's Invisibility and Hypervisibility .....	52
1.4 The Racial Dynamics of Black Women's Femicide .....	56
2. Literary Interview as a Dialogic Form of 'Outsider Within' Portrait.....	63
3. Mobilizing History and Social Positionalities .....	81
3.1 Who am I?: Subjectivity, (Dis)Continuity, and Subjection .....	82
3.2 Transgenerational Black Trauma: Stoicism, Dissociation, Unresolvable Contradictions, and the Legacies of Historical Transatlantic Misogynoir .....	99
3.3 Black Women, Visible Histories, and Gendered Trajectories .....	116
4. Misogynoir and the Construction of Difference .....	159
4.1 White Gaze and the Undesirability of Black Hair.....	160
4.2 Intersection of Anti-Black Misogyny and Fatphobia.....	172
4.3 Intersectionality in the Domestic Kitchen Space .....	177

5. Postcolonial Continuities: Black Women's Positionality in the Global Economy .....	191
5.1 Permissible Humiliations and Anti-Black Violence: Immigration, Citizenship, and Humanitarian Crisis .....	192
Conclusion .....	251
Bibliography .....	263