

Contents

---

1. Introduction: Conrad's ghosts .....	7
2. Colonisation and 'reform' of the Congo .....	47
2.1 'A slice of the magnificent African cake': Congo Free State and Congo Scandal .....	49
2.2 'To fight the forces of evil': The movement for 'Congo Reform' .....	80
2.3 'The deep interest of all classes': Race, gender, class and the reform movement .....	108
3. Congo reform and the crisis of racist representation .....	125
3.1 'Darkest Africa', Brightest Europe: Stanley's imagined Congo and the promise of its submission .....	126
3.2 'Ugly': Racist classification and 'white' culture in crisis .....	146
3.3 'Savage perpetrators', 'helpless victims', 'white and civilised saviours': The dramatic triangle of racist humanitarianism .....	171
4. Congo reform and the crisis of racist politics .....	197
4.1 'Boundaries occupied and guarded': Léopold's promise of colonial hegemony in Central Africa .....	198
4.2 'They will rise en masse': Colonial hegemony and white supremacy in crisis .....	221
4.3 'A humane and practical government of Africa by white men': The humanitarian framework for a stable colonial structure .....	243
5. Congo reform and the crisis of racist societalisation .....	269
5.1 'To combine all elements of the civilised world': The formation of colonial 'whiteness' and its promised benefits .....	270
5.2 'The white man's undoing': Negative societalisation in crisis .....	290

5.3 'To root out the canker': Access, purge and the racist spectacle of humanitarianism .....	310
6. Conclusion .....	339
Acknowledgements .....	357
References .....	359