This book publication is based on my dissertation, which I finished in 2021 at Johannes-Gutenberg Universität, Mainz. Therefore, I first and foremost, owe gratitude to my supervisor Prof. Dr. Mita Banerjee who, through her encouragement, enthusiasm, and guidance tremendously helped me in the process of writing my dissertation and finally turning it into this book.

I did my graduate work in the context of the DFG research group 1939 “Un/doing Differences: Practices in Human Differentiation.” I am grateful to the group for their critical discussion and input concerning the topic of centenarian narratives. My initial research for this project took me to Peterborough, ON, where I was hosted at the Trent Centre for Aging and Society. I would like to thank the center and especially Prof. Dr. Sally Chivers and Prof. Dr. Mark Skinner for their support and hospitality.

I would like to thank the series editors of the Aging Studies Series at transcript, Heike Hartung, Ulla Krieberegg, and Roberta Maierhofer for including my research into their series. Further, I am grateful to the staff at transcript who guided me through the process of my first publication.

For the past six years, I have had the pleasure of working at the Obama Institute for Transnational American Studies. Thank you to my colleagues for creating an inspiring and supportive working environment. I would specifically like to thank Prof. Dr. Alfred Hornung and Prof. Dr. Pia Wiegink for being part of my dissertation committee.

Throughout my years as a PhD student, I got to meet many people who, through critical discussion, contributed to the thoughts that ultimately became this study. I am grateful to these peers and friends for their input, encouragement, and support.

To friends and family: thank you for being the counterbalance.

To my parents: thank you, for your never-ceasing support.
