Preface | 11

Acknowledgements | 13

Introduction | 15

1. Studies on Traditional Hawaiian Hula | 19
 - 1.1 A Brief History of Hula and Principle Features of Hula‘Ōlapa Performance Practice | 19
 - 1.2 Academic Research on Traditional Hawaiian Hula | 25
 - 1.3 A Case Study on Hula ‘Ōlapa Performance Practice | 26
 - 1.4 Chapter Outline | 30

PART I. METHODS

Methods I: Practice as Research | 37

2. Practice as Research: A Principal Method of Embodied Knowledge Inquiry in Performance Studies | 37
 - 2.1 The Master-Disciple Relation as Research Method | 39
 - 2.2 Embodiment, Practice, and Perception: Key Concepts of Cultural and Performance Studies Applied to Practice as Research | 43
 - 2.2.1 The Concept of Embodiment | 43
 - 2.3 Practice as Research and the Embodied Mind Condition | 50
 - 2.4 Self-Reflexivity of the Performer: A Tool of Inquiry about Embodied Knowledge | 52
 - 2.5 Embodied Knowledge and the Senses | 56
 - 2.6 Practice as Research and Studies of the Particular | 58

Methods II: Interart Aesthetics and Performance Analysis | 63

3. Concepts and Methodological Considerations | 63
 - 3.1 Convergence | 67
 - 3.1.1 Intersensoriality | 69
 - 3.1.2 Interplay, Interdependence, and the Study of Media Combinations | 70
 - 3.2 Elements of Convergence in Performance | 73
 - 3.2.1 The Body Can Do it All: The Medial, Material, and Sensory Aspects of Embodiment | 74
 - 3.2.2 Theatre as the Stage of Intermediality | 78
 - 3.2.3 The Six Elements of Performance Analysis | 80
 - 3.3 Degrees of Convergence and Issues of Transgression | 84
 - 3.4 Methodological Synthesis | 88

Methods III: Scoring Performance Practice | 93

4. Kaupō ‘Āina: Scoring Hula ‘Ōlapa Performance Practice | 93
 - 4.1 Introduction | 93
 - 4.2 Sequence, Frames, Cues | 94
 - 4.3 The Concept of Guided Doings | 96
 - 4.3.1 Practice as Research: Writing about Embodied Knowledge | 99
 - 4.3.2 Performance Protocol: Kaupō ‘Āina in Performance | 102
 - 4.3.3 Parameters of Transcription and Scoring | 106
 - 4.4 Scoring Kaupō ‘Āina | 108
 - 4.4.1 Five Parameters of Scoring Performance Practice | 109
 - 4.5 Devising Performance Score 2 | 114
 - 4.6 Final Reflections on Scoring and Outline of Analysis | 114

PART II. ANALYSIS

Analysis I: Staging Oral Poetry by Means of Hula ‘Ōlapa Performance Practice | 119

5. Performance Practice Organization | 119
 - 5.1 Section I: The Interrelation of the Frame Story and the Mele Hula | 121
 - 5.1.1 A Brief Survey on the History of Oral Poetry in Hawai‘i | 121
 - 5.1.2 Poems and Frame Stories: The Interdependence of Source Material and the Mele Hula | 124

- 5.1.3 Ka'ao No Halemano – Source Material of
Kaupō 'Āina | 126
- 5.2 Section II: Means of Performance Practice | 130
 - 5.2.1 Kāhea, Paukū, Holo, and Pā | 130
 - 5.2.2 Pā: Performative Means of Framing | 134
 - 5.2.3 Performance Structural and Referential Functions of
Performative Means of Framing | 136
- 5.3 Section III: Percussion. The Performative, Referential, and Aesthetic Implications Considering Structural Variations
of Acoustic Material | 137
 - 5.3.1 The Kaupō Pattern | 137
 - 5.3.2 Percussion: A Means to Re-Embody History of
Hula Performance Practice in a New Fashion | 143
- 5.4 Section IV: Combining “New” and “Old” Features of
Performance Practice | 148
 - 5.4.1 Historical Implications of Performance Practice
and its Analysis | 148
 - 5.4.2 Weaving together Traditions of Performance Practice | 151

Analysis II: A Performance Aesthetic Study on Stylized
Gestural Articulation | 155

- 6. On Gestures and Stylization | 155
 - 6.1 Body Posture and Gestures in Hula 'Ōlapa
Performance Practice | 155
 - 6.1.1 Specification of Gestures and Outline of the conceptual
Cornerstones of Analysis | 156
 - 6.1.2 Stylization and Body Articulation | 157
 - 6.1.3 Aisthesis, Stylization, Gestural Materialization, and
Sensory Experience | 158
 - 6.2 On Gestures and Stylization Section I:
The Basic Body Posture | 161
 - 6.2.1 'Ai Ha'a – A Principal Gestural Schema which Shapes
the Body as a Whole | 161
 - 6.2.2 Readiness: Ho'omakaukau! | 164
 - 6.2.3 Body Posture and Presence | 165
 - 6.2.4 By Means of Stylization I | 166
 - 6.2.5 'Ai Ha'a and the First Principle of Stylization | 170

- 6.3 On Gestures and Stylization Section II: Stylized-Abstract Gestures | 172
 - 6.3.1 Developments in Gesture Studies | 172
 - 6.3.2 Agency, Materiality, and Referentiality: The Performance Analytical Conceptualization of Gestural Articulation | 174
 - 6.3.3 By Means of Stylization II – Materiality and Stylization of Abstract Gestures | 182
 - 6.3.4 The Gestalt-Concept Applied to an Analysis of Stylized-Abstract Gestures | 188
 - 6.3.5 Stylized-Abstract Gestures Concerning the Upper Body | 195
 - 6.3.6 Stylization and Embodiment | 200
 - 6.3.7 Stylized-Abstract Gestures: Performance Aesthetic Keys to Sensory Experience – Do Stylized-Abstract Gestures Make Sense? | 204

- 6.4 On Gestures and Stylization Section III: Stylized-Alluding Gestures | 209
 - 6.4.1 Conceptualizing Stylized-Alluding Gestures of the Upper Body Segment | 209
 - 6.4.2 By Means of Stylization III | 211
 - 6.4.3 The Makani-Gesture: The Multi-Sensory Experience of Wind as Encounter | 219
 - 6.4.4 Dimensions of Gestural Gestalt-Analysis and the Power of Gestural Metaphoricity | 229
 - 6.4.5 The Performance Aesthetic Effect of Inference between Word and Gesture | 232
 - 6.4.6 The Third Principle of Stylization | 236
 - 6.4.7 Conclusion | 237

Analysis III: By Means of Contrast in Performance | 239

- 7. Structure of Difference: Staging the Division between Performance Disciplines – The Dancer-Actor and the Percussionist-Singer | 239
 - 7.1 Framed Confrontation between Sound, Words, and Body in Hula ‘Ōlapa Performance | 241
 - 7.2 Performance Structural Features and Performance Elements: A Diagrammatic Visualization | 242

- 7.2.1 Structure of Difference: The Ho‘opa‘a and the ‘Ōlapa, the two Major Performance Disciplines in Hula ‘Ōlapa | 244
- 7.2.2 Interrelations of Performance Elements | 244
- 7.2.3 The Performance Domain of the Ho‘opa‘a | 245
- 7.2.4 The Performance Domain of the ‘Ōlapa | 246
- 7.3 Sensory Correspondences among Performance Elements | 247
 - 7.3.1 The Cross-Modal Actualization of Temporality | 249
 - 7.3.2 The Cross-Modal Actualization of Spatiality | 250
 - 7.3.3 Sensory Correspondences between Body, Word, and Image | 251
- 7.4 Performance Segmentation and the Sensory Effect of Varied Combinations of Performance Material | 254
 - 7.4.1 Sensory Sequencing | 254
 - 7.4.2 Sensory Sequencing Applied to Kaupō ‘Āina | 257
 - 7.4.3 By Means of Contrast: Sensory Ratios of Performance Material | 265

Analysis IV: Keying Performance Activity – The Call-And-Response Practice in Hula ‘Ōlapa Performance | 269

- 8. Explicit Cues in Hula ‘Ōlapa Performance Practice: Kāhea | 269
 - 8.1 Introduction | 269
 - 8.2 Categorizing Kāhea | 276
 - 8.2.1 Kāhea Wehe: The Opening Dedication | 276
 - 8.2.2 The Prototypical Kāhea: The Vocal Indication of the Next Following Stanza | 281
 - 8.2.3 E-ue: A Call Indicating the Final Performance Sequence of Kaupō ‘Āina | 284
 - 8.2.4 Kāhea Pau: The Ending Dedication | 285
 - 8.3 Cues and the Transformative Power of Keying Performance Activity | 286
 - 8.4 Multi-Sensory Experience and the Evocative Capacity of Poetry | 290

Conclusion | 293

- 9. Hula ‘Ōlapa – A Performance Aesthetic of the Senses. Results of Analysis and Final Reflections | 293

Appendices | 299

- Appendix A: Case Study Photos 1-8 | 301
- Appendix A: A-2, Basic Body Posture, ‘Ai Ha‘a | 304

Appendix B:	PS 1, Performance Score 1: Kaupō ‘Āina	305
Appendix C:	PS 2, Performance Score 2: Kaupō ‘Āina	307
Appendix D:	Outline: Division of Performance Disciplines – Cross-modal Correspondences between Performance Elements	313
Appendix D:	D-2, Revision: Division of Performance Disciplines – Cross- modal Correspondences between Performance Elements	314
Appendix E:	Gestalt-Model 1 and 2	315
Appendix F:	Categories of Kāhea in Relation to PS 1	317
