

About the authors

Howard Chiang holds the Lai Ho and Wu Cho-liu Endowed Chair in Taiwan Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara, where he is also Professor of East Asian Languages and Cultural Studies and Director of the Center for Taiwan Studies. He received his PhD from the Department of History at Princeton University. His major publications include After Eunuchs: Science, Medicine, and the Transformation of Sex in Modern China (Columbia UP, 2018), winner of the International Convention of Asia Scholars Humanities Book Prize and the Bonnie and Vern L. Bullough Book Award from the Society for the Scientific Study of Sexuality, and Transtopia in the Sinophone Pacific (Columbia UP, 2021), a Lambda Literary Award in LGBTQ Studies Finalist, winner of the Bullough Book Award, and recipient of the Alan Bray Memorial Book Award Honorable Mention from the Modern Language Association. Between 2019 and 2022, he served as the Founding Chair of the Society of Sinophone Studies.

Contact details: howardchiang@ucsb.edu

Laura Díaz-Esteve is a Margarita Salas Postdoctoral Fellow at the Spanish National Research Council (CSIC), Madrid, and at Universidad Autónoma de Madrid. She is a historian of imperialism in Southeast Asia during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Specializing in the American occupation of the Philippines, her research focuses on transimperial contacts and the media.

Contact details: laura.diaz.esteve@gmail.com

Julia Hauser is a senior lecturer in modern history at the University of Kassel, Germany. Her research interests include the entangled history of Europe, South Asia, and the Middle East, the history of the body, gender, and knowledge, and the history of colonialism. Her second monograph, A Taste for Purity: An Entangled History of Vegetarianism, was published by Columbia University Press in 2024.

Contact details: julia.hauser@uni-kassel.de

Chie Ikeya is Associate Professor of History and Director of the Institute for Research on Women at Rutgers University, New Brunswick. She is the author of InterAsian Intimacies across Race, Religion, and Colonialism (Cornell University Press, 2024) and Refiguring Women, Colonialism, and Modernity in Burma (University of Hawai'i Press, 2011). Her research has been funded by several institutions including the National Endowment for the Humanities, Japan Foundation, Toyota Foundation, and Mellon Foundation.

Contact details: chie.ikeya@rutgers.edu

Kate Imy is a screenwriter and historian based at Texas Woman's University. Her first book, Faithful Fighters: Identity and Power in the British Indian Army, won the NACBS Stansky Prize and the American Historical Association's Pacific Coast Branch Book Award. Her second book, Losing Hearts and Minds: Race, War, and Empire in Singapore and Malaya, 1915–1960 was released with Stanford University Press in 2024. She has received the AHA'S Bernadotte Schmitt Grant, a Lee Kong Chian Fellowship from the National University of Singapore and Stanford University, a Fulbright fellowship in India, and a fellowship from the Institute of Historical Research (UK).

Contact details: kate.alison.imy@gmail.com

Sara Legrandjacques, PhD, is an associate researcher at the IHMC and a fellow of the ICMigrations, both located in Paris. Her research deals with student mobility in colonial Asia from the mid-nineteenth century up to the Second World War, with a specific focus on French Indochina and British India. Agrégée in History, she also teaches history to high-school and university students.

Contact details: sara.legrandjacques@gmail.com

Zhi Qing Denise Lim is a doctoral candidate at the Professorship for the History of the Modern World at ETH Zürich. Her doctoral project examines “European deviance” in colonial Singapore, c. 1890–1940. Prior to her doctoral studies, she was a Lee Kong Chian Research Fellow at the National Library, Singapore.

Contact details: zhiqingdenise.lim@gmw.gess.ethz.ch

Margrit Pernau is Senior Researcher at the Max Planck Institute for Human Development in Berlin and teaches at Freie Universität. She is a historian of South Asia, specializing in the history of emotions and concepts. Her most recent publications include Emotions and Modernity in Colonial India: From Balance to Fervor (Delhi, Oxford University Press, 2019) and the Special Issue Emotions in South Asia, South Asian History and Culture, 12(2–3) (2021).

Contact details: pernaum@mpib-berlin.mpg.de

Willemijn Ruberg is Associate Professor in Cultural History at Utrecht University. Her research interests include the modern history of gender, sexuality, emotions, law, knowledge, forensic expertise and the body, as well as cultural theory. Her History of the Body was published in 2020 in the History and Theory series of Palgrave Macmillan/Red Globe Press. She is the Principal Investigator of the research project Forensic Culture: A Comparative Analysis of Forensic Practices in Europe, 1930-2000, funded by an ERC Consolidator Grant (2018-2024). Contact details: w.g.ruberg@uu.nl

Teresa Segura-Garcia is a Tenure-track Professor of Modern South Asian History at Universitat Pompeu Fabra, Barcelona. She holds a PhD in History from the University of Cambridge. She has been a postdoctoral fellow at the Centre for the Study of Developing Societies, Delhi, with an ICAS:MP fellowship by the M. S. Merian – R. Tagore International Centre of Advanced Studies. Her recent publications include the edited volume Unexpected voices in imperial parliaments (Bloomsbury, 2021) and a chapter on the Indian princely states in the Routledge Handbook of the History of Colonialism in South Asia (edited by Harald Fischer-Tiné and Maria Framke, 2021). Contact details: teresa.segura@upf.edu

Samiksha Sehrawat has published widely on the history of colonial medicine, gender, war, the environment and development. She is the author of Colonial Medical Care in North India: Gender, State, and Society, c. 1830-1920 (Oxford University Press, 2013). Dr Sehrawat has served as an elected member of the executive committee for the European Association for South Asian Studies and the Society for the Social History of Medicine. She is completing her second book on how biomedicine was transformed in the ‘colonial clinic’, which emerged from her Leverhulme Trust Fellowship. Contact details: samiksha.sehrawat@newcastle.ac.uk

Elena Valdameri is Senior Researcher at the Professorship for the History of the Modern World, ETH Zurich. She is the author of Indian Liberalism between Nation and Empire. The Political Life of Gopal Krishna Gokhale (Routledge, 2022). She works on the history of modern South Asia, with specific interest and expertise in the history of political thought, the anticolonial movement, the politics of the body and citizenship. Her current project examines the role of physical education and outdoor activities for girls and women in late colonial and early independent India as a part of broader modernizing projects that focused on the body as a site of political intervention and used it to convey norms and values of ‘good’ citizenship. Contact details: elena.valdameri@gess.ethz.ch

Erica Wald is a Senior Lecturer in modern history at Goldsmiths, University of London. Her research focuses on the social, cultural and military history of colonial India. She is the author of Vice in the Barracks: Medicine, the Military and the Making of Colonial India (2014). Her current project, Everyday Empire: Social Life, Spare Time and Rule in Colonial India is an exploration of the intersections of social life and colonial rule. She is the co-editor of the British Journal for Military History. Contact details: ewald@gold.ac.uk