Keiichi Kawamura obtained his PhD degree from the Osaka City University, Osaka, Japan in 2013, for a study of the Broad System of Ordering (BSO). He has been Editorial Consultant of the BSO Panel Ltd, UK, from 1995 to 2000. His research interest focuses on the theory of classification and indexing, with particular emphasis on relational analysis as an alternative to the categorical view. His latest work was published as: "The Legacy of Ranganathan: Classificatory Principles in the British Technology Index." Journal of the Japan Society of Library and Information Science 63, no.1, 2017: 20-36.
