

About the Authors

Patrick Peter Bernhard is Professor at the Department of Archaeology, Conservation, and History, University of Oslo, and the author of “North Africa and the Holocaust: European Colonialism, Nazism and Local Agency,” S.I.M.O.N. 11:1 (2024): 4-22, and of In the Shadow of El Alamein: War Violence, Colonial Rule and the Holocaust during the North African Campaign (book manuscript in preparation).

Véronique Dimier is Professor at the Department of Political Science, Université libre de Bruxelles, and the author of Le gouvernement des colonies: regards croisés franco-britanniques (Bruxelles: Editions de l'Université de Bruxelles, 2004) and of The Invention of a European Development Aid Bureaucracy (London: Palgrave, 2014).

Ulrike von Hirschhausen is Professor at the Department of History, Universität Rostock, since 2025 the Head of the German Historical Institute, Washington, DC, and the author of Die Grenzen der Gemeinsamkeit. Deutsche, Letten, Russen und Juden in Riga 1860–1914 (Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 2006), and, with Jörn Leonhard, of Empires. Eine globale Geschichte 1780–1920 (München: C. H. Beck, 2023).

Jenny Huangfu Day is Associate Professor at the Department of History, Skidmore College, and the author of Qing Travelers to the Far West: Diplomacy and the Information Order in Late Imperial China (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2018) and of Transborder Fugitives, Extradition, and Political Crimes in Modern China (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2025).

William R. Kelson is a fellow at the Society of Fellows in the Humanities, The University of Hongkong. He is the author of “Manias, panics, & land: The property bubbles of the great Chinese crash of the 1880s,” Business History (2024): 1–26, <https://doi.org/10.1080/00076791.2024.2340619>, and is currently finalizing a monograph manuscript with the working title Empire Unraveled: The Great Crash that Doomed China's Last Dynasty.

Ulrike Lindner is Professor at the Department of History, Universität Köln, and the author of Koloniale Begegnungen. Deutschland und Großbritannien als Imperialmächte in Afrika 1880–1914 (Frankfurt am Main: Campus, 2011) and, with Dörte Lerp, of the edited volume New Perspectives on the History of Gender and Empire. Comparative and Global Approaches (London: Bloomsbury, 2018), DOI: 10.5040/9781350056343.

Jiajia Liu is a postdoctoral fellow at the Geneva Graduate Institute, and the author of “The Missing History of the Shanghai Stock Exchange (1904-1941),” The Twelfth International Convention of Asia Scholars Conference (ICAS 12) Proceedings (Amsterdam University Press), vol. 1 (2022): 396-400 and of “Financial Capitalism on the Periphery: The Rubber Boom and Bust in Shanghai” (PhD thesis, Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, Geneva, 2021).

Alexander Morrison is Fellow and Tutor in History at New College, Oxford University, and the author of Russian Rule in Samarkand 1868-1910: A Comparison with British India (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2011) and of The Russian Conquest of Central Asia: A Study in Imperial Expansion, 1814-1914 (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2020).

David Motzafi-Haller is a postdoctoral fellow at Université de Neuchâtel, where his research focuses on the history of experts, infrastructures, and intermediaries across empires. His work examines the crucial role these connectors and mediators play in shaping the dynamics of modern imperial and transimperial history. His publications have appeared or are forthcoming in the Journal of Imperial and Commonwealth History, Humanity, and Sociétés politiques comparées. Revue européenne d'analyse des sociétés politiques (SPC). He is also the creator and host of the Transimperial History Podcast.

Marc-William Palen is Senior Lecturer at the Department of History, Exeter University, and the author of The “Conspiracy” of Free Trade: The Anglo-American Struggle over Empire and Economic Globalization, 1846-1896 (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2016) and of Pax Economica: Left-Wing Visions of a Free Trade World (Princeton: Princeton University Press, 2024).

Cyrus Schayegh is Professor of International History and Politics, the Geneva Graduate Institute (IHEID), and the author of The Middle East and the Making of the Modern World (Cambridge, Mass.: Harvard University Press, 2017) and Modern Transimperial History: an Introduction (Oxford: Oxford University Press, forthcoming).

Florian Wagner is Assistant Professor of History, Universität Erfurt, and the author of Colonial Internationalism and the Governmentality of Empire, 1893-1982 (Cambridge: Cambridge University, 2022) and of “The Many Endings of the International Colonial Institute and the White Appropriation of Decolonisation (1949-2000),” Journal of Modern European History 23:2 (2025): 167-190, <https://doi.org/10.1177/16118944251331410>.