

Contents

---

Acknowledgments | 9

1. Introduction | 11

- 1.1 Contextualization: Intersex at the Intersection of Medicalization, Human Rights Issues, and Ethical Debates | 14
- 1.2 Positioning of the Study in North American Intersex Studies | 18
- 1.3 Primary Corpus and Structure of the Study | 23

2. Approaching Intersex: Conceptual and Theoretical Framework | 29

- 2.1 Concepts and Terminology | 30
- 2.2 Intersex as a Contested Category | 33
- 2.3 The In/Visibility of Intersex: Visualization Practices, the Medical Gaze, and the Biopolitical Regulation of Intersex Bodies | 45
- 2.4 The Dilemma of Intelligibility and Strategies of Survival: Intersex between ‘Normalization’ and Resistance | 50

3. The Intersex Movement of the 1990s: Speaking Out Against Medical and Narrative Violence | 55

- 3.1 The Paradigm Shift from Medical Narratives to Narrating Personal Experience | 55
- 3.2 Fragmented Bodies, Fragmented Realities: First-Person Narratives of Intersex Lives, 1994–2002 | 60
  - 3.2.1 ‘Normalizing’ Intersex Bodies: The Medico-Cultural Erasure of Intersex and the Renegotiation of ‘Loathsome Options’ of Recognition | 60
  - 3.2.2 Medical Gaze vs. Visual Self-Invention: The Performativity of Genitals and the Construction of Sexuality | 71
  - 3.2.3 Making Up for the Absence: Redefining Sexual Pleasure and the Challenging of Heteronormative Ideas of Gender and Sexuality | 83
  - 3.2.4 Intersex in the Eyes of Lovers: Overcoming Sexual Trauma and the Eroticizing of the Intersex Body | 90
  - 3.2.5 “Sharing Our Stories, Our Lives, Our Anger”: Ideas of Community and the Collective Rearticulation of Intersex | 96

4. Challenging Dominant Narratives From Within:
Autobiography as a Critical Reflection on the Paradigm
Shift in Intersex Narratives | 103

4.1 Coming Out as Intersex – and What Next? Intersex Autobiographical Writing against the Limits of Representation | 103

4.2 Thea Hillman’s “Search for Self in a World Obsessed with Normal”: Intersex (For Lack of a Better Word) | 108

4.2.1 Storytelling as a Coming Out Process: The Violence of Representation and the Struggle for Recognition | 110

4.2.2 “A Password into a Secret Club”: Anxieties about the ‘Different’ Body, the Medicalization of Intersex, and Questions of Non/Conformity | 124

4.2.3 Inhabiting Uninhabitable Homes: Intimate Relationships, Sexual Survival, and Queer Subculture as an Alternative World | 140

4.2.4 “I’m More Like You than I Am Like Them”: Ideas of Community and Questions of Belonging | 150

4.2.5 The “Daily Work of Acceptance,” of Surviving as Intersex | 156

5. Reimagining Intersex: Literary Renegotiations of the Dis/Continuities between Hegemonic Narratives and the Recognition of ‘Difference’ | 159

5.1 Mainstreaming Intersex I: Novels between Fictional Liberties and the Need for Narrative Closure | 159

5.2 From Medical Object to Cultural Phantasma and Back on Track: Middlesex and Movements of Escaping/Striving for ‘Normalization’ | 163

5.2.1 Callie, a Medical Case Report: The Sexual Disorders and Gender Identity Clinic as a Space of Pathologizing Intersex | 168

5.2.2 From Callie to Cal, from Detroit to San Francisco: A Cross-Country and Gender Transition Journey | 182

5.2.3 San Francisco: Space of the Freak Show and Mythology | 184

5.2.4 Is there a Moral Obligation to Write a Particular Story of Intersex? | 199

5.3 How to Make A Life in Your Body When Your Body Feels Uninhabitable: Annabel and the Search for Spaces of Recognition | 201

5.3.1 The Cultural Parameters of Gender Construction: Medicine, Aesthetics, and Sexual Violence | 204

5.3.2 A Parent-Child-Relationship: Lost Daughters and Sons of Nature | 219

- 5.3.3 “Make a Life for Yourself any Way You Want, in any Place”: Thomasina and the Crossing of Spatial and Gender Boundaries | 227
- 5.3.4 “Building a Voice up from the Ruins”: Wally, Annabel, and the Quest for Vocal Self-Determination | 232
- 5.3.5 Does an Intersex Story Have the Obligation to be Subversive? | 236

6. Screening Intersex at Prime Time: Intersex in/as a State of Emergency and Popular Culture’s Un/Acceptable Interventions | 241

- 6.1 Mainstreaming Intersex II: Medical Drama Series between Entertaining and Educating the Masses | 241
- 6.2 Chicago Hope’s Parental Dilemma, or: Production Notes on a Baby in “The Parent Rap” | 246
- 6.3 Deceiving Gender: Intersex Femininity as a “Masquerade,” or: the Violence of (Mis)Representation in Emergency Room | 259
- 6.4 Deceiving Gender, Revisited: Intersex Femininity is only “Skin Deep,” or: House’s Case of Intersex Misogyny | 270
- 6.5 Grey’s Anatomy’s Ethical Doctors and Resistant Teenager, or: Renegotiating ‘Normalcy’ in “Begin the Begin” | 285

7. “We Exist, We Are Human, We Are Everywhere among You”: A Conclusion | 295

Bibliography | 305

