

Contents

Acknowledgements	7
1 Introduction	9
2 Towards a Conceptual Framework of Vernacular Re-Composition	25
2.2 Distributed Control and Immaterial Labour: Reflections on the Concept of Prodsusage	35
2.3 A First Approach to YouTube-Situated Vernacular Aesthetics	45
3 Contextualising and Categorising Media Objects of Musical Prodsusage	57
3.1 Meta-Discursive Music Video	58
3.2 Everyday (Self-)Capture and Re-Appropriation: Audiovisual Objets Trouvés	74
3.3 Composing with Computational Surface and Interface Effects	87
4 Circulation, Imitation, and Play
Affective and Formal Dimensions of Contagious Musical Remix	105
4.1 Conceptual Remix Beyond Notions of Mechanistic Virality	106
4.2 “Meme Music”? Meta-Memetic Play as Epitome of Viral Spread	128
5 Musical (Micro-)Celebrities
Authorial Strategies and Vernacular Repertoires	153
5.1 Musical Performance of the Self in Aspirational Channel Concepts	155
5.2 Beyond Composition: Communication, Collaboration, and the Constitution of Channels	168
5.3 “Role-Setters” and their Activated Community: Hypnotising Tendencies and Networked Relations	187

6 Challenges and Vernacular Competencies of Selectivity and Evasion	203
6.1 Transcending Ironic Distance in Networked (Re-)Composition	204
6.2 How to be Differently Different – “Becoming-Imperceptible” in an Environment of Commensurability	221
7 Conclusion	239
Bibliography	251
Secondary Sources	251
Primary Sources	263
List of Figures	275