

Contents

Acknowledgements	7
Introduction	9
1 Trauma Narratives, Mixed Media, and the Meditation on the Invisible ..	15
Two Photographs	15
Conceptualizing Mixed Media	18
Hemingway, Crane, and the Dialectic of Wound Cultures	20
Painting, Photography, and World War II	24
Mixing Digital and Analogue Media	27
The Practice of Witnessing	31
2 Imaging Axis Terror: War Propaganda and the 1943
The Nature of the Enemy Exhibition at Rockefeller Center	35
Fighting the “Nazi Method”	36
The Nature of the Enemy Exhibition at Rockefeller Center	41
Empathy vs. Vicarious Experience	46
Concentration Camps on Display	50
Framing the Horrors of War	54
3 In Search of a Common Vision: Ben Shahn, Photography,
and The Family of Man Exhibition in 1955	61
The Art of Photography	62
Photography vs. Painting: The New York Times Debate	64
Photography as Visions of Contact	68

Shahn's Boone County Photograph	71
Creating Relatable Symbols	78
Embedded Photographs: Italian Landscape (1943/44)	81
4 Transnational Romance: Love and Politics in the Cinema of the 1930s and 1940s	91
Romance, Transnationalism, and the Cinema	93
Performing Americanness	95
Fantasies of Love and Freedom	99
Creating Romantic Couples	103
5 Poetry and Film, Film as Poetry: Notes on a History of Creative Interactions	109
Poems About the Cinema, Films About Poets	111
Poetry as a Narrative Element	113
Films as Poetry	117
Videopoetry	119
Poetic Sequences	122
6 Screening Holocaust: American Television and the Discourse on 'Victim Cultures' in West Germany	131
Presenting Holocaust	135
The Reception of Holocaust and a New Pedagogy of Suffering	137
Envisioning Victim Cultures	143
Holocaust and Beyond	147
Index	155