

Contents

---

Chapter One: Introduction .....	11
End of the unions? .....	13
Outline of the book .....	19
Chapter Two: Very well, alone! Denying the narrative arc .....	23
The Tudors .....	25
Reconfiguration through the narrative arc .....	29
The Second World War .....	33
The 'Inner Empire' and the 'Outer Empire': the other narrative arc .....	37
Conclusion .....	40
Chapter Three: Europe's narrative arc .....	43
Where is Europe? .....	47
Creating European Values .....	51
Conclusion .....	52
Chapter Four: Early attempts at supranationalism .....	55
The nature of supranationalism .....	58
Are nations manageable? .....	60
Hobbes and the nation .....	62
International anarchy .....	65
Nations become nation-states .....	66
The fear of world rulers .....	69
Conclusion .....	73

Chapter Five: Monnet and his limitations .....	75
The little man from Cognac .....	75
The influencer and the campaigner .....	82
The supranational option is adopted .....	84
The flaws in the Monnet system .....	87
Conclusion .....	88
Chapter Six: The long road towards British entry .....	93
The Labour government and supranationalism .....	94
Rejection of the Coal and Steel Community .....	96
The Treaties of Rome .....	98
The UK tries to join .....	102
Accession and the first referendum .....	109
Conclusion .....	113
Chapter Seven: The long road towards British departure .....	115
The Single European Act and the Treaty of Maastricht .....	115
The social market .....	119
Hung, drawn and troikered .....	123
Immigration .....	126
Conclusion .....	130
Chapter Eight: Invasion and Expansion on the Isles .....	133
What did the Romans ever do for us? .....	133
1066 and all what? .....	139
Three kingdoms, four nations .....	142
The dynastic umbrella .....	151
Conclusion .....	153
Chapter Nine: Saving the UK4 .....	155
The failure of Home Rule All Round .....	155
Devolution .....	163
The English 'problem' .....	167
Conclusion .....	174
Chapter Ten: Home Rule for Northern Ireland? .....	175
The significance of the Belfast Agreement .....	178
The Future of Northern Ireland .....	181

The relation of the UK to the Republic of Ireland .....	186
Conclusion .....	189
Chapter Eleven: Wales and the English .....	191
Survival through language and religion .....	193
Industrial development and English overspill .....	198
The history of devolution in Wales .....	201
The problems of sharing power .....	203
Conclusion .....	207
Chapter Twelve: Wales and a British Union .....	209
Parliament and the Courts .....	213
The House of Lords .....	218
The subsidiarity principle .....	220
Other proposals: Council of Ministers and Constitutional Convention .....	221
Conclusion .....	224
Chapter Thirteen: The Future of the UK and the Problem of Little England .....	227
Seeking 'national purity' .....	228
Black and Asian English? .....	230
Sitting on the rock .....	233
The Churn and the Cathedral .....	236
A comment on immigration .....	240
Conclusion .....	241
Chapter Fourteen: The strange romance of the sovereignty of parliament .....	243
Back to the 70s? .....	246
God and the British Constitution .....	248
Another narrative arc .....	251
The limitations of parliamentary sovereignty .....	254
Human rights and parliamentary sovereignty .....	259
Conclusion .....	262
Chapter Fifteen: Elites and Populists: Upending the top-down approach .....	265
Change from above to below .....	266
Selling Europe to Europeans .....	270
Working for the top-downers .....	272
Deliberative Democracy .....	275

Conclusion .....	280
Chapter Sixteen: On embedding the upward cascade .....	283
Permanent participatory mechanisms .....	285
Radical blinkers .....	288
Other proposals for reform of the EU .....	289
Conclusion .....	295
Chapter Seventeen: The Future of the UK .....	299
Conclusion .....	312
Chapter Eighteen: Conclusion .....	315
Final thoughts on sovereignty, constitutions – and the chance of reform .....	327
Bibliography .....	335