

Contents

Introduction

The Politics of Gender in Early American Theater
Leopold Lippert and Ralph J. Poole 7

The Male Stage

College Theatricals and Masculinity in the Age of the American Revolution
Michael Streif 27

Liminal Spaces

Cross-Dressing, Monetary Transfers and Other Real and Imaginary Crossovers in Susanna Rowson's Slaves in Algiers
Etti Gordon Ginzburg 47

Partisan Allegories of Race and Desire

Algerian Captivity as a Musical Entertainment in Susanna Haswell Rowson's Slaves in Algiers
Daniela Daniele 69

American Theater and the Quest for a Republican Identity

Judith S. Murray's The Medium; or, Virtue Triumphant (1795)
Zoe Detsi 97

The Theatricality of Sexual Difference in Late-Eighteenth-Century America

Deborah Sampson's Staged Gender Masquerade
Astrid M. Fellner 119

Sowing the Seeds of Virtue

Susanna Haswell Rowson's Contributions to Conduct Literature

Verena Holztrattner 143

Porous Spheres in Time of War

The Fair Americans and the Questioning of Gender Roles within the Family

Pauline Pilote 163

"O'er us, rovers free"

Performing Gender and National Identity in Jacksonian
Pirate Melodrama

Alexandra Ganser 179

Contributors 211