

Contents

Peripheral Memories – Introduction

Elisabeth Boesen | 7

The Functions of Familial Memory and Processes of Identity

Anne Muxel | 21

“Totally Average Families”?

Thoughts on the Emotional Dimension in the Intergenerational Transmission of Perspectives on National Socialism

Jan Lohl | 33

The Aftermath of Violence

The Post-Coup Second Generation in Chile

Daniela Jara | 51

Familial Discussions in the Context of Memory Research on the Second World War

Expectations and Disappointments

Renée Wagener | 69

The Family as a Social Frame of Memory

The Example of Luxembourgian Farmer Families

Elisabeth Boesen | 95

Private, Semi-Public, Published

Rural Autobiographies within the Family and Beyond

Rita Garstenaer | 121

Curating People?

Museum Mediated Memories and the Politics of Representation

Elizabeth Carnegie | 143

Remembering the Home

The Intricate Effects of Narrative Inheritance and Absent Memory on the Biographical Construction of Orphanhood

Delyth Edwards | 161

Public Discourse and Private Memory Processes in Luxembourgian Steel Worker Families

Denis Scuto | 183

Questioning the Cultural Memory of the 1960s

Communist Narratives in Contemporary British History

Joseph Maslen | 203

Remembering Socialism, Living Post-Socialism

Gender, Generation and Ethnicity

Daniela Koleva | 219

“Actually we are Deeply Rooted in Austria”

National Identity Constructions and Historical Perceptions of Young People with Migration Backgrounds in Austria

Alena Pfoser | 239

Narrated (Hi)Stories in an Intercultural Context

How Young People in Germany and Poland Deal with Tensions Between Communicative and Cultural Memory

Jeanette Hoffmann | 259

Contributors | 283