

Contents

Introduction: Why scale matters

Thomas Widlok 7

How do we scale hunter-gatherers' social networks?

Towards bridging interdisciplinary gaps

Nurit Bird-David 19

Comment by Charlotte Damm 32

Comment by Bram Tucker 34

What good is archaeology?

Archaeological and ethnographic scales

Robert L. Kelly 39

Comment by Graeme Warren 53

Comment by Brian Codding 56

Upscaling forager mobility and broadening forager relations

Thomas Widlok and Stephan Henn 59

Comment by Robert L. Kelly 78

Scales of interaction

Quantity and quality of encounters amongst northern foragers

Charlotte Damm 83

Comment by Elspeth Ready 104

Comment by Andreas Maier 107

A large-scale view on 'small-scale societies'

Andreas Maier, Isabell Schmidt, and Andreas Zimmermann 111

Comment by Robert L. Kelly 128

Comment by Graeme Warren 129

Socioecological factors influence hunter-gatherers

Group size, lifetime interactions, and emergent properties of culture

Brian F. Codding, Kasey Cole, and Kurt M. Wilson 131

Comment by Andreas Maier 152

Scale and Inuit social relations

Ilaqit, parts of each other

Elsbeth Ready 155

Comment by Brian Codding 175

Mikea, Malagasy, or hunter-gatherers?

Scale, ethnicity, and cultural groups in ethnographic description
and ethnological analysis

Bram Tucker 179

Comment by Thomas Widlok 203

Scaling an island of hunter-gatherers

Writing the Mesolithic of Ireland

Graeme Warren 207

Comment by Charlotte Damm 224

Comment by Bram Tucker 225

Authors' biographies 227