

Contents

Acknowledgments	9
Notes on names	11
Abbreviations	13
Introduction	15
An ethnography of Peru's judicialized mining conflicts	16
Judicialization of politics and the ambiguity of law	18
Peru's mining conflicts as a research field	28
Chapter 1. Defending human rights in a mining country	35
Peru's Human Rights Movement	35
Mining conflict Río Blanco in Piura	41
Minera Yanacocha and the Conga mining conflict in Cajamarca	45
An ethnography of Peru's mining conflicts	57
Chapter 2. Expectations of Law	63
Introduction	63
Strategic litigation	64
Categorizing expectations of law	68
Conclusion	84
Chapter 3. Human rights litigation from below	87
"Slow and not always just"	89
Public prosecutors as doorkeepers	98
Attributing corporate liability	108
Conclusion	117
Chapter 4. Criminalizing social protest	119
The dark side of judicialization	122

Criminalization of mining critics in Peru	124
Law's domination.....	127
The threat of criminalization	135
De-constructing the criminal subject	142
Conclusion	145
Chapter 5. Transnational advocacy campaigns.....	147
Introduction	149
From a land dispute to legal disputes	150
Advocacy campaigns at home and abroad	158
Conclusion	167
Chapter 6. Human rights litigation abroad.....	169
Introduction	169
Suing transnational parent companies at home	171
Case studies: an overview	174
Expectations of law in litigation abroad	183
Conclusion	194
Chapter 7. Law's limitations	197
Introduction	197
Beyond the right to have rights	198
Relationships in law	206
Beyond law and litigation	217
Conclusion	220
Conclusion. The ambiguous forces of law	223
Law's hegemony	226
The emancipatory force of law or law as a weapon of the weak?	229
Bibliography	233