

Acknowledgments

This book is a slightly revised version of the doctoral dissertation I completed at the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven in 2022. I would like to express my special thanks to David Burn and Paulo de Assis, members of the supervisory committee, who followed my work with attention and intelligence, also granting me the necessary time and freedom to develop the present text. Bob Gilmore, who unfortunately passed away in 2015, was also part of the team.

I owe it to the generous invitation of Peter Dejans, Director of the Orpheus Instituut of Ghent, that I could devote some years of my life to this study. Working at the Orpheus Instituut has allowed me to work independently on my research as well as to organize and attend seminars and study-days useful for my investigations. I was able to discuss with other researchers and artists, even indirectly, some of the themes addressed in this book. My thanks must be extended to all of my colleagues of the Institute, in particular to Tom Beghin, Nicholas Brown, Jonathan Impett, Catherine Laws, and Luk Vaes. I am particularly grateful to Lucia D’Errico and Ellie Nimeroski, who were both attentive readers of this work.

I also wish to thank other colleagues and friends of mine—musicians and not—with whom I had the pleasure of discussing the topics of this research: Patrizio Barontini, Donatella Bartolini, Gianmario Borio, Corinne Diserens, Paolo Giudici, Fabio Lombardo, Cecile Malaspina, Luigi Manfrin, Catherine Perret, Eleonora Rocconi, Xavier Le Roy, Dorit Tanay, Jean d’Yvoire, and Christophe Wavelet. My deepest and heartfelt gratitude goes to Christine Meisner.

Finally, I would like to thank composer and pianist William Tatge for his invaluable copy-editing work.
