

Content

Introduction

Space – The Theoretical Frontier 7

I. Spaces

What Do They Represent?

Computer Games as Spatial Concepts
Stephan Günzel 13

Playing with Sight

Construction of Perspective in Videogames
Stephan Schwingeler 41

From Background to Protagonist

Spatial Concepts in ‘Portal’ and ‘Echochrome’
Karla Theilhaber 61

The Art of Being There

Artistic Practices of Presence in Narrative Media
Teun Dubbelman 75

Space and Narrative in Computer Games

Sebastian Domsch 103

II. Places

Ludoforming

Changing Actual, Historical or Fictional Topographies into Ludic Topologies
Espen Aarseth 127

There's No Place Like Home

Dwelling and Being at Home in Digital Games

Daniel Vella 141

Videogame Wastelands as (Non-)Places and 'Any-Space-Whatever's'

Souvik Mukherjee 167

The Game and 'The Stack'

The Infrastructural Pleasures of 'Pokémon Go'

Bjarke Liboriussen 185

No End of Worlds

Michael Nitsche 201

III. Territories

Itineraria Picta

Itineraria Scripta

Mathias Fuchs 215

Distance and Fear

Defining the Play Space

Sebastian Möring 231

The Rhetoric of Game Space

Lotman's Spatial Semantics as a Method for Analysing Videogames

Niklas Schrape 245

Morphology and Meaning in 'Castle Wolfenstein 3D'

Paul Martin 271

Combinatorial Explorations

A Brief History of Procedurally-Generated Space in Videogames

Mark J.P. Wolf 295

Authors 311