

Contributors

Christine Ekholst is an Associate Professor of Medieval History at Uppsala University. Her research interests include gender, sexuality and crime in the Middle Ages. Her current research project, funded by the Swedish Research Council, is a study of disability in medieval Sweden. Her most recent publications are “Neither Brutes, Nor Sissies: Re-imagining the Vikings on a Swedish Online Forum” (2024) and “Hellre död? Sår, skador och funktionsnedsättningar i de medeltida lagarna” (2025). E-mail: christine.ekholst@hist.uu.se

Tuomas Heikkilä is a Professor of Church History at the University of Helsinki. Previously, he served as the Director of the Finnish Scholarly Institute in Rome. Originally trained as a historian, Heikkilä has emphasised multidisciplinary scholarship and collaboration with scholars in fields such as computer science, evolutionary biology, electron microscopy, and bio-codicology. His expertise encompasses various aspects of medieval written culture, computer-assisted stemmatology, medieval hagiography, and monastic history. Heikkilä is currently one of the four Principal Investigators of The Medieval Book and Networks of Northern Europe, c. 1000–1500: Texts, Crafts, Fragments, a project funded by an ERC Synergy Grant (2025–2031). He is also the Principal Investigator of Combining Humanities and Natural Science Research to Study Medieval Texts, Scribes, and Craftsmanship, a project funded by the Finnish Research Council (2024–2028). E-mail: tuomas.m.heikkila@helsinki.fi

Cordelia Heß is a Professor of Medieval History at Aarhus University. She held the Chair of Nordic History at the University of Greifswald between 2017 and 2024 and was the PI of the project “Saints and Heroes from Christianization to Nationalism: Symbol, Image, Memory (North-West Russia, Baltic, and Nordic countries).” Her research interests include the cultural and religious history of the Late Medieval Baltic Sea region, the history of antisemitism, and interreligious contact. Her most recent publications are Rassismus im Norden? Eine postkoloniale Spurensuche in Grönland und Sápmi (DeGruyter 2025) and Doing Memory: Medieval Saints and Heroes and Their Afterlives in the Baltic Sea Region (DeGruyter 2024, edited with Gustavs Strengra). E-mail: c.hess@cas.au.dk

Philipp Höhn is an Assistant Professor of Medieval History at the University of Halle-Wittenberg. His research focuses on the social and economic history of Northern and Western Europe in the later Middle Ages, with particular interest in conflict management among burghers of the Hanse towns and the intellectual history of Hanse research in the 20th century. His current project examines practices of maritime violence and its criminalization in relation to state formation and the hierarchization of markets. E-mail: philipp.hoehn@geschichte.uni-halle.de

Georg Jostkleigrew is a Professor of Medieval History at the University of Halle. His research explores the political structures and identities of medieval France, with additional interests in the intellectual history of the 13th and 14th centuries and the historiography of the Middle Ages. He has also worked on medieval factions and factional discourse as a means of understanding political conflict and cohesion. E-mail: georg.jostkleigrew@geschichte.uni-halle.de

Gregory Leighton is a Research Specialist at the Malbork Castle Museum (Research Centre for Post-Teutonic Order Heritage). He was a NAWA-Ulam Fellow at Nicholas Copernicus University in Toruń from 2021 to 2023, where he worked on a project examining crusading ideology in the Prussian branch of the Teutonic Order from the 13th to 15th centuries. His research interests include the cultural history of the medieval Baltic region, particularly the Teutonic Order, the perceptions and representations of ‘landscape’ in Teutonic Order texts, and the Order’s portrayal in the writings of fifteenth-century Prussian townspeople. His most recent publications are “Rustics as instruments of God’s wrath: News about the battle of Posada in the Ordensland of Prussia” (2024, co-authored with Florin Curta), “Ad terram Prussie quasi Vineam de Egipto Translata... The Role of the Natural World in the Written and Visual Culture of the Prussian Crusades, 1230–1390” (2024), and “Ein Heerzugsbericht des Deutschen Ordens aus dem Staatsarchiv Thorn: Inhalts-, Datum- und Kontextanalyse” (2023, co-authored with Krzysztof Kwiatkowski). E-mail: g.leighton@zamek.malbork.pl

Gustavs Strenga is an Associate Professor of Cultural History at the Latvian Academy of Culture in Riga. He was a postdoctoral researcher for the project “Saints and Heroes from Christianization to Nationalism: Symbol, Image, Memory (North-West Russia, Baltic and Nordic countries)” at the University of Greifswald. His research interests include cultural history, medieval memory and commemoration, medieval ethnicity, gift-giving as a historical phenomenon, and the afterlives of medieval heroes beyond the Middle Ages. His most recent publications are Remembering the Dead: Collective Commemoration and Memory in Late Medieval Livonia (Brepols 2023) and Doing Memory: Medieval Saints and Heroes and Their Afterlives in the Baltic Sea Region (DeGruyter 2024, edited with Cordelia Heß).

E-mail: gustavs.strenga@lka.edu.lv