

Contents

---

Acknowledgments | 7

Introduction | 9

I. THE FOLKLORE OF EPILEPSY

I.A Falling Asleep: The Stigma of Epilepsy in History | 21

I.B American Literature: From Stigma to Metaphor? | 39

I.C Ableist Metaphor: Historical Motifs and Normalcy | 55

II. LIMINAL SPACES OF INDIVIDUATION

II.A Jürgen Link and Michel Foucault: Symptomatic
Signification of Proto- and Flexmetaphors | 69

II.B George Canguilhem: Vital Materiality and
Relational Metaphors | 81

II.C Gilbert Simondon: Transindividual Metastability and
Conceptual Metaphors | 95

III. EPILEPSY METAPHORS IN AMERICAN LITERATURE (1990-2015)

III.A Metaphor and Society: Proto- and Flexmetaphors and Calculated Individuation

- III.A.1 Lauren Slater's Lying:
The Epileptic Text I (Ellipse & Ellipsis) | 115
- III.A.2 Audrey Niffenegger's The Time Traveler's Wife: From Flexmetaphor to Protometaphor | 131
- III.A.3 Dennis Mahagin's Grand Mal:
The Epileptic Text II (Cosine & Enjambment) | 143

III.B Metaphor and Materiality: The Relational Body and Its Electric Individuation

- III.B.1 Thom Jones' The Pugilist at Rest:
Epilepsy as Compassion | 157
- III.B.2 Rodman Philbrick's The Last Book in the Universe: Epilepsy as Archive | 169
- III.B.3 Reif Larsen's I Am Radar:
Epilepsy as Communication | 181

III.C Metaphor and Idioms: Siri Hustvedt's Metastable Rhetoric as Transindividuation

- III.C.1 The Blindfold:
Falling as Fragility | 191
- III.C.2 The Enchantment of Lily Dahl:
Shaking as Vulnerability | 209
- III.C.3 The Summer Without Men:
Em Dash as Endurance | 221

Conclusion | 235

Bibliography | 239