

CONTENTS

Chapter 1: War Correspondents in Action and Representation

7

War Correspondents as an Object of Cultural Interest and Cultural Studies

7

The Represented Reporter

14

Sources

17

Chapter Overview

20

Chapter 2: War Correspondents in the Field

23

Performing the War Correspondent

23

Performance, Habitus and Fields of Action

28

Role Conceptions

32

The Media, Technologies and Infrastructure

38

Politics and the Military

43

Individual War Scenarios and Individual Actors

58

Representations

62

Chapter 3: Setting the Trend. Representations of the Golden Age

69

Self-Representations. The War Correspondent as Adventurer

69

Victorian War Correspondents in Fictional Representation.

Doyle and Kipling

81

Chapter 4: Crises and Re-Assertions.
From the First World War to the Falklands

	95
An Image in Decay	95
Restoring the Self-Image	100
New Icons and a Parody. Evelyn Waugh's Scoop	105
Heroes Once More. The Correspondents of the Second World War	111
The Quiet American . Detachment and Engagement in a Foreign War	115
Vietnam and Beyond.
Correspondents in War and Anti-War Films of the 1980s	118
A Century of Changing Images	129

Chapter 5: 1990s to Present.
The Media in War from Gulf to Gulf

	131
New Cultural Awareness of War Correspondents	131
Pooled and Fooled? Representing Reporters of the First Gulf War	133
Reporting the Civil Wars in Former Yugoslavia	136
Representing Correspondents in the War on Terror	154
War Correspondents and Gender Performance	158
A New Golden Age?	162

Chapter 6: Conclusion.
Drawing Some Threads Together

163

Bibliography

171

Index

183