I would like to express my sincere thanks to all the people who accompanied and supported me on the way to completing my doctoral thesis. My special thanks go to my supervisors, Prof. Dr. Guido Thiemeyer and Prof. Dr. Pascal Griset, for their advice and assistance throughout the entirety of the process – not only in terms of the doctoral thesis, but also in navigating the German and French academic systems. Here, I would also like to thank Dr. Julia Siep and Benedikt Schick, who brought Heinrich Heine University and the Université Paris-Sorbonne together administratively. I would also like to thank the other members of the project team for their support: Dr. Léonard Laborie and Prof. Dr. Christian Henrich-Franke for their advice on content, and Valentine Aldebert for the productive, friendly and fun cooperation on our two projects. This Franco-German project was made possible by funding from the DFG and the ANR, to whom I would like to express my gratitude for their financial support for this project. Last, but certainly not least, I would like to thank my family and friends for their constant support. This is especially true for my parents and my partner, without whom this work would have been neither created nor completed.
