

About the authors

Ivan Arnautović PhD obtained his doctorate in 2011 from the Faculty of International Economics, Finance and Business of the University of Donja Gorica, Podgorica, Montenegro.

Milan Beslać PhD is Associate Professor in the Faculty of Business Economics and Entrepreneurship, Belgrade.

Milovan Dimić researches in the social sciences area with a particular interest in the issues surrounding poverty and social justice in Serbia.

Tea Golja PhD is Associate Professor in the Department of Economics and Tourism of Juraj Dobrila University of Pula, Croatia, where she teaches courses in economics, organisation and management. e-mail: tgolja@unipu.hr

Pavel Janičko, PhD Doc. Ing. is an economic analyst with ČMKOS and is also Director of the Research Centre of the Banking Institute, University of Prague. e-mail: janicko.pavel@cmkos.cz

Roberta Kontošić MSc is a sub-contractor in the Department of Economics and Tourism of Juraj Dobrila University of Pula, Croatia, where she teaches courses in entrepreneurship and business and the economy. e-mail: rkontos@unipu.hr

Marko Kimi Milić is an academic specialist in the High School of Professional Studies of the Football Academy, Belgrade.

Vladimir Obradović MSc lectures in Professional Studies in the High School of Professional Studies of the Football Academy, Belgrade.

Vlajko Petković PhD is Professor in the Faculty of Business Economics and Entrepreneurship, Belgrade. e-mail: vlajkopetkovic@hotmail.com

Zorana Petković is at the Higher Education Institution for Applied Studies for Entrepreneurship, Serbia. e-mail: zoranapetkovicbgd@gmail.com

Samanta Požega has a first degree in economics and is currently at in the Department of Economics and Tourism of Juraj Dobrila University of Pula, Croatia. e-mail: spoze-ga@unipu.hr

Qerim Qerimi is teaching at the University of Prishtina, Kosovo.

Aleksandar Rašović PhD obtained his doctorate from the Faculty of International Economics, Finance and Business of the University of Donja Gorica, Podgorica, Montenegro.

Bruno S. Sergi is Professor at the University of Messina, Italy. He is also a member of the Editorial Board of the SEER Journal for Labour and Social Affairs in Eastern Europe.

Nataša Tanjević PhD is Associate Professor in the Faculty of Business Economics and Entrepreneurship, Belgrade, Serbia.