

Contents

Acknowledgments 11

Introduction 13

Part I: Die heilige Poesie—The Aesthetic Dimension of Hegel’s Sublime

Chapter 1: The Reception of Hegel’s Sublime 25

1.1 Art Has Come to an End 25

1.2 The Contemporary Preeminence of the Kantian Sublime 29

1.3 Final Remarks 35

Chapter 2: Kant’s Sublime 37

2.1 General Frame of Kant’s Sublimity 38

2.2 Reflective Judgment and Commensurability 40

2.3 The Sublime 42

2.3.1 On the Mathematically Sublime 44

2.3.2 On the Dynamically Sublime in Nature 48

2.4 Final Remarks 51

Chapter 3: Hegel’s Erhabenes and die heilige Poesie 55

3.1 Preliminary Remarks 55

3.1.1 On the Philological Problem 56

3.2 Hegel’s Aesthetics and die heilige Poesie 59

3.2.1 Symbolic Form of Art 61

3.2.2 Das Erhabene and die heilige Poesie 62

3.3 Final Remarks 66

Part II: Heteronomie—The Practical Dimension of Hegel’s Sublime

Chapter 1: Judaism, Kant’s Heteronomie, and Hegel’s Early Fragments	73
1.1 Antecedents to Hegel’s Conception of Judaism in Kant’s Practical Philosophy	73
1.1.1 Kant as a Hegelian Source: The Grounds of Heteronomy	74
1.2 The Early Hegel: Judaism, or How to Try to Overcome Kant’s Approach to Morality but Fail at It	91
1.2.1 “Das Leben Jesu”	92
1.2.2 “Die Positivität der christlichen Religion”	102
Chapter 2: “Zur christlichen Religion”	123
2.1 First Subfragment	127
2.1.1 First Glances of Disappointment with Kant	127
2.1.2 Morality, Love, Religion, and the Objective World	147
2.1.3 Punishment versus Fate as the Overcoming of Dualism	149
2.2 Second Subfragment	155
2.2.1 B. Moral	155
2.2.2 C. Religion	157
2.2.3 D. History	161
2.3 Third Subfragment	163
2.3.1 The Slavery of the Categorical Imperative	163
2.3.2 The Pleroma of Law	169
2.4 Fourth Subfragment	173
2.4.1 Immanent Fate	174
2.4.2 Forgiveness and the Annulment of Right (Aufhebung des Rechts)	182
2.4.3 Mystical and Symbolic Action	187
2.5 Fifth Subfragment	192
2.5.1 The Father, the Son, and the Pleroma of Love	192
2.6 Sixth Subfragment	195
2.6.1 Participation in God—True God as the Infinite Pure Life	195
2.7 Seventh Subfragment	200
2.7.1 Son of God, Son of Man	200
2.8 Eighth Subfragment	204
2.8.1 Faith Is Not Autonomy Yet	204
2.9 Ninth Subfragment	210
2.9.1 Love’s Jealous Isolation, Paralysis of Life, and the Resurrection of Jesus	211

Concluding Remarks	219
Literature	225
Primary Literature	225
Secondary Literature	226

