

Table of contents

Introduction | 9

1. THEORIES

How We Read

Towards an Ecological Philology | 19

Hanjo Berressem

“The Return to Philology”

About the Eternal Recurrence of a Theoretical Figure | 39

Marcus Krause

Pathological Philology

Desire, Lack & the Digital Humanities | 57

Björn Sonnenberg-Schrank

2. MATERIALITIES

The Hourglass

Classics and the Dematerialization (or something else) of Philology | 73

Ádám Rung

Paper Mythology

Extending the Material ‘Milieus’ of Literature and Philology | 93

Nicolas Pethes

The Literary Manuscript

A Challenge for Philological Knowledge Production | 109

Livia Kleinwächter

From Abstraction to Inscription and Back Again

(Reverse) Blackboxing described by Aaron Bernstein
and Bruno Latour | 129

Charlotte Jaekel

On-the-Table

Text Curating in the Electronic Age | 147

Júlia Tóth-Czifra

3. PRACTICES

Opening, Turning, Closing

The Cultural Technology of Browsing and the Differences between the
Book as an Object and Digital Texts | 161

Matthias Bickenbach

Combination of Order and Disorder

The Slip Box as a Medium for Second Order Communication | 175

Charlotte Coch

Fractures of Writing

Space Production and Graphic Surfaces | 185

Gábor Mezei

New Practices = New Conditions?

Interrelations of Practical Approaches, Methodologies, and Theoretical
Concepts in Digital Literary Studies | 197

Julia Nantke

4. TECHNOLOGIES

Sites of Digital Humanities

About Virtual Research Environments | 219

Gábor Palkó

The Intertextual Frontiers of Vergil's "Empire without Limit"

Digital Comments on Aeneid 1.278-9 | 229

Dániel Kozák

Calendar View

Digitization and Big Data in the Historical Daily Press Research | 257

Amália Kerekes

Micro and Macro, Close and Distant

History and Philology After the Digital Revolution | 269

Gábor Vaderna

Securing the Literary Evidence

Some Perspectives on Digital Forensics | 287

Melinda Vásári

On the authors | 311

