

Acknowledgements

This book is based on my dissertation at the Faculty of Humanities at the University of Bern.

First and foremost, I am deeply grateful to my research partners in the field, who were willing to share with me insights into their life worlds and who provided the material and spice for the PhD-thesis. I would also like to thank my supervisor Prof. Dr. Heinzpeter Znoj from the Institute of Social Anthropology of the University of Bern for his long-term support, his critical encouragements and his ongoing interest in my research project. In addition, my thanks go out to Prof. Dr. Andrea Maihofer from the specialist field of Gender Studies at the University of Basel, who agreed to become my second examiner. Dr. Maihofer provided me with valuable input by discussing part of my paper with me. I am also sincerely grateful to the PhD students at the Doctoral Colloquium in Social Anthropology at the University of Bern for their ongoing critical and supportive comments on my paper in progress. I would also like to thank the participants, the programme management and the programme committee of the Graduate School Gender Studies at the University of Bern for welcoming me onto their interdisciplinary PhD-programme, and for the inspiring discussion during one of the annually held symposiums from which I was able to benefit enormously. Spending time in the field (especially the second field research period) and writing down the PhD-thesis were sometimes a balancing act between meeting my work obligations and progressing with the thesis. I would also like to thank the University of Applied Sciences and Arts Northwestern Switzerland, School of Social Work, especially the Institute of Integration and Participation, for granting me leave to complete this research project. I am grateful to Monty Suftrin, who was helpful in the final phase of my endeavour by editing the manuscript.

Because this research spans many years, many people have been involved, at different times. Thus, my heartfelt thanks go to all those persons and friends who supported me in the field and at home, who enabled contacts, spent time with me, gave me feedback, accompanied and motivated me in both better and more difficult times. A very special thank you goes to Gionatan Zappola, to José Oropesa and to my late mother Erika Imhof-Bieri.
