

Table of Contents

Preface | 9

Abstract | 11

Figures | 13

Tables | 15

Introduction | 19

The importance of trust in the police | 19

Aim and research question | 21

Structure | 22

Theoretical considerations and state of research | 25

1. Reflections on research on trust in the police | 25
 - 1.1 Introduction | 25
 - 1.2 Developments | 25
 - 1.2.1 Police research | 25
 - 1.2.2 Trust research | 26
 - 1.3 Institutional versus organizational approaches | 28
 - 1.3.1 Trust in the institution police | 28
 - 1.3.2 Attitudes toward the organization police | 29
 - 1.4 Filling the research gap: the attempt at a combination | 31
 - 1.5 Cross-national research | 33
 - 1.6 Summary | 34
2. Determinants of trust in the police | 35
 - 2.1 Introduction | 35
 - 2.2 Trust in the police as a government institution | 36
 - 2.3 Confidence in the work of the police: effectiveness and fairness | 38
 - 2.3.1 Theories of procedural justice | 39
 - 2.4 The role of encounters | 43
 - 2.4.1 Research overview | 48

- 2.4.1.1 Differences between police- and citizen-initiated contact | 48
- 2.4.1.2 Treatment of crime victims | 51
- 2.4.1.3 Reporting crimes | 52
- 2.4.1.4 Negative experiences weigh more | 53
- 2.4.1.5 Individual influences: socio-demographic and other factors | 56
- 2.5 The impact of social trust | 61
 - 2.5.1 Research overview | 64
- 2.6 Summary | 65
- 3. Model and hypotheses | 67

Methodology | 73

- 4. Data | 73
 - 4.1 European Social Survey 2010 (ESS2010) | 73
 - 4.1.1 Sample | 73
 - 4.1.2 Variables | 76
 - 4.1.2.1 Victims of crime | 81
 - 4.2 Swiss Crime Survey 2011 (CS2011) | 83
 - 4.2.1 Sample | 84
 - 4.2.2 Variables | 85

European perspective: East, West, and Switzerland compared | 89

- 5. Introduction | 89
- 6. Macro level patterns of trust in the police | 90
 - 6.1 Introduction | 90
 - 6.2 Distribution of trust in the police | 90
 - 6.3 Governmental trust | 91
 - 6.4 Social trust | 93
 - 6.5 Summary | 94
- 7. Trust in the police at the individual level | 94
 - 7.1 Introduction | 94
 - 7.2 Local ratings and overall trust in the police | 95
 - 7.3 Distribution across Eastern and Western Europe | 99
 - 7.4 The police as an arm of the government | 102
 - 7.5 Police-initiated contact | 105
 - 7.5.1 Individual influences | 107

- 7.5.2 Satisfaction with treatment received | 110
- 7.5.3 The impact of social trust | 117
- 7.6 Encounters and the influence of individual and contextual factors | 126
- 7.7 Summary | 135
- 8. Summary | 135

The perception of crime victims | 141

- 9. Introduction | 141
- 10. Victims trust in the police | 141
- 11. Victim-initiated police contact in Switzerland | 143
- 12. Summary | 150

Discussion | 151

- 13. Reflection on hypotheses | 151
- 14. Views of local police work and general trust in the police | 156
- 15. Building and destroying trustworthiness | 159
 - 15.1 Officers as institutional representatives | 159
 - 15.2 Police – versus victim-initiated contact | 160
 - 15.3 A good reputation contrasts increasing attacks toward the police | 161
- 16. Cultural aspects | 164
- 17. Trends in opinions | 166
- 18. Limitations | 169
- 19. Conclusion and outlook | 173

References | 175

Appendices | 189

Appendix A: European Social Survey | 189

Appendix B: Swiss Crime Survey 2011 | 197

