

Contents

Comparative Practices in Britain's Long Eighteenth Century An Introduction Marcus Hartner & Nadine Böhm-Schnitker	7
The Creation of the English Nation: Alfred the Great as Role Model Julia Wiedemann	25
The Circulating Library, the Novel, and Implicit Practices of Comparing in Eighteenth-Century England: Assembling 'Middle-Class' Literariness Ralf Schneider	45
Comparing Conduct: English Novels of the Long Eighteenth Century and the Formation of Ideals of Social Behaviour Marcus Hartner & Ralf Schneider	77
The Complexity of Narrative Comparisons in Wollstonecraft's Maria; Or, The Wrongs of Woman and Lennox's The Female Quixote Anne Lappert	105
"'tis by Comparison we can Judge and Chuse [sic!]" Incomparable Oroonoko Monika Class	125
Articulating Differences: Practices of Comparing in British Travel Writing of the Long Eighteenth Century Nadine Böhm-Schnitker	149

Oceans of Non-Relation: Affect and Narcissistic Imperialism in Sea Poetry by James Thomson, Charlotte Brontë, and Hannah More Caroline Koegler	179
Practices of Comparing in Eighteenth-Century Grammars of English Göran Wolf	203
Authors and Editors	223