

Contents

Introduction: The Paradoxical Nature of Death in America	7
1. The Text Devouring the Dead: Edgar Allan Poe and David Lynch's American Gothic	23
1.1 Edgar Allan Poe – Various Figurations of the Same Death	28
1.2 Rewriting the Dead: Twin Peaks	39
1.3 Overcoming the Dead: Twin Peaks – The Return	49
2. I am Dead, Yet I Live – The Zombie's Gluttonous Craving for the Living	59
2.1 Romero's Zombies: Dawn of the Dead , Land of the Dead	66
2.2 Brains à la Mode: iZombie and the Reinterpretation of the Traditional Zombie as Subject	75
3. Producing the Corpse: Quentin Tarantino's Revenge Narratives	89
3.1 The Personal Vendetta: Riding the Pussy Wagon – Kill(ing) Bill and Death Proof	95
3.2 Reimaginings of History as Collective Vengeance: Inglourious Basterds and Django Unchained	110
4. Ingesting the Corpse: The Cannibal's Taste for Death – American Psycho and Hannibal	125
4.1 Fetishizing the Corpse: Bret Easton Ellis' American Psycho	133
4.2 Le cannibalisme pour le cannibalisme: Bryan Fuller's Hannibal	142
5. Creator/Destroyer: The Serial Killer as an American Phenomenon	155
5.1 Catering to a Compulsive Craving: Wes Craven's Scream Franchise	165
5.2 An American Tale: The Assassination of Gianni Versace	178
Conclusion: Death. Again.	195
Acknowledgements	205

Bibliography	207
List of Illustrations	217