

Contents

---

Introduction – How Prenatal Diagnosis is Entangled in Historical and Social Contexts
Christina Schües ..... 9

I. Biomedical rationalisations of “life”, reproduction and responsibility? Historical, social and ethical perspectives

1. Biological Reproduction, Offspring, and Radical Otherness
Burkhard Liebsch ..... 29

Commentary – The Ethics of Never Again
Natan Sznaider ..... 47

2. Origins and Practices of Genetic Risk and Responsibility
Is it Irresponsible Not to Test?
Christina Schües ..... 57

II. Governance and biopolitics

3. Non-Invasive Prenatal Testing in Germany and Israel
A Matter of Course or a Matter of Discourse?
Tamar Nov-Klaiman, Hannes Foth, Yael Hashiloni-Dolev ..... 95

4. PND in Israel: Public Health Services and Uptake in Cultural Context
Aviad Raz ..... 121

5. NIPT in Germany
Moral Concerns and Consumer Choice
Kathrin Braun and Sabine Könniger .....	137

Commentary – “Yes, but...” vs. “no, but...”: Ambivalences towards Prenatal Diagnosis in Israel and Germany
Kathrin Braun, Sabine Könniger, Aviad Raz .....	159

III. Comparative empirical bioethics of reproductive practices and their social contexts

6. Views on Disability and Prenatal Testing Among Families with Down Syndrome and Disability Activists
A Comparative Analysis of Interviews from Germany and Israel
Tamar Nov-Klaiman, Marina Frisman, Aviad E. Raz, Christoph Rehmann-Sutter .	165

A Commentary from Disability Activism in Israel
Rachel Lishansky .....	191

A Commentary from Disability Studies in Germany
Swantje Köbsell .....	195

7. Socio-Cultural and Religious Views on Prenatal Diagnosis in Israel and Germany
A transnational conversation between Tsipy Ivry and Hille Haker initiated by Anne Weber and Christina Schües .....	199

8. What Does Prenatal Testing Mean for Women Who Have Tested?
Christoph Rehmann-Sutter, Tamar Nov-Klaiman, Yael Hashiloni-Dolev, Anika König, Stefan Reinsch and Aviad Raz .....	227

9. “Something is Not Quite Right” – Two Cinematic Narratives about Decision-Making after Prenatal Diagnosis
Christoph Rehmann-Sutter, Christina Schües .....	253

IV. Intertwining knowledge practice, epistemology and ethics

10. The Unconditionality of Parent-Child Relationships in the Context of Prenatal Genetic Diagnosis in Germany and Israel
Hannes Foth ..... 265

11. Can Not Wanting to Know Be Responsible?
Conceptual Analysis and Meanings of Not-Knowing in Israeli and German Prenatal Genetic Practices
Christina Schües, Stefan Reinsch, Aviad Raz and Christoph Rehmann-Sutter ... 303

12. Comparison through Conversation
Thinking with Different Differences
Yael Hashiloni-Dolev, Aviad Raz, Christoph Rehmann-Sutter, Christina Schües . 347

Biographies ..... 373

