Social and Cultural Geography | Volume 34

Friederike Landau (Dr.), born in 1989, is Assistant Professor in Cultural Geography at Radboud Universiteit, Nijmegen, The Netherlands. She works on modes of political agency and (self-)organization in the field of arts and culture. Her dissertation »Agonistic Articulations in the »Creative« City – On New Actors and Activism in Berlin's Cultural politics« (Routledge 2019) provides a post-foundational analysis of the emergence of a new political actor.

Lucas Pohl (Dr.), born in 1989, is a postdoctoral researcher at the Geography Department of the Humboldt University Berlin. He works on the interstices between human geography, philosophy, and psychoanalysis with a focus on spatial theory, built environments, and political action.

Nikolai Roskamm (Dr.), born in 1967, is a professor for planning theory, history of urban planning, and urban design at the University of Applied Sciences, Erfurt. In his work, he mingles political theory and philosophy, history of ideas, and urban phenomena.
