

Douglas R. McGaughey

David Friedrich Strauß: A Reading of His Gospel Criticism and Metaphysics

Studien und Materialien zur Geschichte der Philosophie

Edited by | Herausgegeben von
Bernd Dörflinger
Antonino Falduto
Heiner F. Klemme

Volume | Band 103

Douglas R. McGaughey

David Friedrich Strauß: A Reading of His Gospel Criticism and Metaphysics

Volume 1/2

GEORG OLMS
VERLAG

The Deutsche Nationalbibliothek lists this publication in the Deutsche Nationalbibliografie; detailed bibliographic data are available on the Internet at <http://dnb.d-nb.de>

ISBN 978-3-487-16690-2 (Print)
978-3-487-42449-1 (ePDF)

1st Edition 2025

© The Authors

Published by
Georg Olms Verlag – ein Verlag in der
Nomos Verlagsgesellschaft mbH & Co. KG
Waldseestraße 3–5 | 76530 Baden-Baden

Production of the printed version:
Nomos Verlagsgesellschaft mbH & Co. KG
Waldseestraße 3–5 | 76530 Baden-Baden

ISBN 978-3-487-16690-2 (Print)
ISBN 978-3-487-42449-1 (ePDF)
DOI https://doi.org/ 10.5771/9783487424491

Online-Version
Nomos eLibrary

This work is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution
4.0 International License.

Frontispiece

"Philosophy cannot be learned, because every philosopher erects his [sic.] own edifice on the ruins of another, and if I were really given a system so clear that it always contained irrefutable propositions, I would still not be a philosopher if I learned all its propositions by heart. I would not have learned to philosophize but only possess historical knowledge without knowing the wellsprings from which it was ladled."¹

Immanuel Kant, Wiener Logik
AA XXIV: 799

"One must distinguish between two types of study: There is ruminative (grüblerische) scholarship that is of no use to humanity, and there were once philosophers whose whole scholarship consisted in outdoing each other in brilliance. These are called scholastici. Their art was scholarship for the academy, but one could not gain enlightenment for common life from it. One can have a great reputation in the academy without the world benefiting from one's knowledge. A second kind of scholarship consists in not only gaining respect from one's fellow guildsmen in the academy but also in extending knowledge beyond the academy and seeking to spread one's knowledge for the common good. This is scholarship for the world. Proper scholarship for the academy is in accordance with academic standards. This is a perfection that should not be despised because all scholarship must be exemplary. Only then can it also be popularized in order to be accepted and used by mere amateurs. At first, student training should engage enough manual skills that we can see how knowledge can best be applied to ordinary people. A person who makes a scholastic use of her/his knowledge is a pedant; s/he knows only how to describe her/his concepts with the technical terms of the school and speaks only in learned phrases. S/he merely applies purely scholastic knowledge in worldly affairs, but here in worldly affairs one must always know how to apply one's knowledge in a popular way so that others, not just scholars by profession, can understand us.

Immanuel Kant, Menschenkunde
AA XXV,2: 853;
Olms ed. 1

1. The 'wellsprings' of philosophy are neither merely perceptible nature nor the writings of others but, above all, the imperceptible, transcendental conditions of finite consciousness that make any and all experience, understanding, and responsible agency in the world possible, in the first place. On the challenges and need to discern the 'well-springs' of humanity, see Kant, The Study of Humanity or Philosophical Anthropology (Menschenkunde oder philosophische Anthropologie) AA XXV,2: 857; Olms ed.: 6-7.

Table of Contents

Foreword: A Con-figured Narrative	19
Preface	33
Introduction	69
History or Falsehood?	69
Two Aspects to Myth: ‘Husks’ and ‘Kernels’ and The Genetic Mythical Principle	75
The Erosion of Hegel’s Philosophy of Religion	77
Strauß’ Historical Convictions	82
The Glaubenslehre that Wasn’t	83
Breaking the Theological Silence: Religion as Morality	83
The Christ of Faith and the Jesus of History: Rejection of Perfect, Eminent Causality	84
The Old and the New Faith : Nature ‘Turning In-ward’	85
An Unrealized Kantian Option:	91
Volume I David Friedrich Strauß: Gospel Critic Who Sparked a Populist Revolution	97
Part I: On the Explosive Mix of History and Myth in the Gospels	99
Chapter 1: Methodology:	101
Chapter Overview	101
On Understanding as Three-fold Mimesis: A ‘Method’ for a Close and Deep Reading of Strauß	104
Strauß from the Perspective of Subsequent Gospel Criticism	111
Terminology Clarification as Segue into D.F. Strauß’ Work	125
History or Myth?: On the Role of Hegelianism in the Life of Jesus	127
Strauß’ Understanding of Myth	133
The ‘ Genetic Mythical Principle ’	137
Myth (‘Faith’) and ‘Science’	143
History versus Myth: A False Dichotomy	147
Speculative Metaphysics and Science	153

‘Criticism’ and ‘Critique’	164
Neither Grace Nor Hegel’s Cunning of Reason	168
Strauß’ Hegelianism Blocked Appreciation of Kant’s Paradigm Revolution	169
Chapter 2: Strauß Who? What? Why Does It Matter?	173
Chapter Overview	173
Strauß’ Sources for Application of the Concept ‘Myth’ to the Bible	173
A: On the different kinds of reading of the gospels as history or doctrine:	177
1) A purely historical interest:	177
2) A dogmatic interest:	177
B. Classification of the unlimited variety of readers of the gospels:	178
C. On the differences in basic perspectives (Gesichtspunkte)	178
D. The anonymous author concludes by expressing respect for the creative energy that the gospels have unleashed having clearly expressed her/his preference for the mythic character of the text:	183
Mythic Epistemology is no Denial of Historical Factuality	188
Mythic Embracing of the Text and Church Dogmatics?!	193
Myth and Science are Compatible	197
The Unstated Agenda: The Theology of the Exegete	201
On the Mythic Reading’s Ancient, Classical Roots and Theology	204
Strauß and ‘Mediating’ Theology	209
Chapter 3: Academic Controversy and Reaction to Strauß’ Life of Jesus	213
Chapter Overview	213
Two Academic Complaints, the Hegelians, and F. C. Baur	213
Academic Controversy Based on Criticism (diairesis)	219
Ferdinand Christian Baur’s Criticism of Strauß	222
A Voice out of France: Edgar Quinet’s Criticism of Strauß	235
Biblical ‘Criticism’ Does Not Mean Negative Destruction	238
Strauß’ Ambivalent Relationship to the Hegelians	242
Chapter 4: Why Schleiermacher was not an Option	249
Chapter Overview	249
Strauß’ Opponents: Traditional Christian Theists, Hegelians, and Schleiermacher	251

Schleiermacher mattered for Strauß	251
Methodology	255
An Olive Branch to the Schleiermachians and a Broken Lance	259
Schleiermacher's Feeling, Hegel's Absolute Knowledge, and Kant's Morality	264
If not knowledge or action, just what does Feeling Accomplish?	266
A Fragile Edifice Built on the Sand of Feeling	267
Defense of both Faith and Science: ('Mediating' Theology)	284
On Schleiermacher's 'Subjectivity' and Hegel's 'Objectivity': A shared Theology of 'Empty Abstractions' with Differences in Christology	286
Strauß' Theological Position at the Conclusion of the Glaubenslehre : Schleiermacher's Significance Overshadowed by Docetism and Sabellianism	293
On the Role of Philosophy in Theology: Schleiermacher's Shell Game	300
Kant or Spinoza?	303
Schleiermacher and the Gospel of John	311
The Gospels – True or False? The Wrong Question	311
Schleiermacher on the Gospel of John as Eyewitness	313
What Schleiermacher doesn't Share with The Gospel of John:	314
John's Pre-Existent Logos and Schleiermacher's New Creation:	314
Schleiermacher Emphasizes Theological Tendency in the Synoptics but Ignores the Theological Tendency of the Gospel of John:	315
Christ as miracle worker:	316
John speaks of resurrection and judgment – Schleiermacher did not:	317
Conclusion	317
Volume I	319
Part II: An Historical Reader for the 1839 Zurich Revolution	321
Introduction to the Historical Reader: on the September 6, 1839, Revolution in Zurich, Switzerland	323
A "Historical Reader" of Translated Materials from the 1839 Events	326
Organization of the Historical Reader	326
McGaughey – On D.F. Strauß and the 1839 Revolution in Zurich	329
The Appointment of Strauß and Its Context	329
The Spark in the Tinderbox	331

The Two Phases of the 1839 Revolution	332
Phase One: The Pensioning of Strauß	332
Phase Two: The Fall of the Government and Firing of Scherr	334
Schulthess – Explanatory Notes on the Strauss Movement and September 6, 1839	341
Comments by Schulthess [Editor of the Pamphlet]	341
Attachment [never published, according to Schulteß' report, see above, page 374]: Report from Lieutenant-Colonel Sal. Hirzel on his Orders from the 5th to the 6th of September [1839]	371
The New Zurich-Calendar for the Leap Year 1840:	377
The Meeting in Kloten	378
The Wounded	384
Deceased	384
Paulus – On Theological Academic Freedom and the Election of Instructors for Universities	387
Translator's Summary of Paulus' Themes	387
The Text	388
De Wette – Dr. Strauß and the Church of Zurich:	413
Translator's Summary of de Wette's Themes	413
The Text	415
Preface	415
Anonymous – Strauß Can't and Shouldn't Come!	425
"Strauß Should Not Be Allowed into Our Country!"	425
"No one is good but the one God"	426
"Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth"	427
"Test everything and hold onto the best"	428
"Seek first the Kingdom of God and its justice"	430
"Tested is superior to studied"	432
Strauß – Epistle to the Highly Esteemed Messrs	435
Translator's Summary of Strauß' Themes	435

The Text	437
Epistle to the People of Zurich From Professor Orelli	437
Epistle From David Friedrich Strauss	438
Anonymous – Response on the Part of a Layperson to the Strauß’ Epistle to Hirzel, Orelli, and Hitzig	449
Translator’s Summary of Anonymous Authors’ Themes	449
The Text	450
Henne – Epistle to the Upper Council of the Canton of Zurich From Dr. Anton Henne	455
Translator’s Summary of Henne’s Themes	455
The Text	456
Meyer – The Value of the Written Word	465
Translator’s Summary of Meyer’s Themes	465
The Text	467
Kottinger – Doctor Strauß and His Teaching.	477
Translator’s Summary of Kottinger’s Themes	477
The Text	477
Foreword	478
Part I: The Person Doctor Strauß	479
1. First Emergence of Dr. Strauß	479
2. Persecution of Him	480
3. Judgment of Him	480
4. Strauß in Ludwigsburg	481
5. His Lectures Against His Enemies	481
6. His Private Life	482
7. Conclusion	482
Part II. Doctor Strauß’ Teaching	483
1. "The Life of Jesus"	483
2. On the Content of the Book	483
3. Continuation	484
4. Defamations of Doctor Strauß	484
5. For What was Doctor Strauß Appointed?	485
6. Will He be a Reformer?	485
7. Who Called Doctor Strauß?	485

Conclusion	486
Wirth – Epistle to the Author of the Pamphlet: Dr. Strauss and His Teaching	487
Translator’s Summary of Wirth’s Themes	487
The Text	489
1. The Person Dr. Strauß	489
2. The teaching of Dr. Strauß	492
3. The Call of Doctor Strauß	494
4. The Proper Fight Against Dr. Strauß	496
Conclusion	498
Scherr – A Free and Instructive Epistle	501
Translator’s Summary of Scherr’s Themes	501
The Text	502
Report on the Activity of the Aid Society for the Good of the Victims of 6 September 1839	515
Volume II	525
Part III: Strauß’ Metaphysics: On the Way from Hegel to Kant	527
Vol. II: Introduction	529
A Call for a Re-engagement of ‘Metaphysics but Not just any and all Metaphysics’	529
Strauß’ Metaphysics	541
Kant’s Defense of Metaphysics	542
"The Moral View of the World"	547
Hegel on "I should, but I can’t" in Contrast to Kant’s "If I should, I can"	550
Understanding is not Merely Information and Causal Explanations. The Role of Metaphysics in Understanding	554
Chapter 5: Traces of an Intellectual Crisis. The Metaphysical Issues	561
Chapter Overview	561
Textual Analysis of Strauß’ Metaphysical Wanderings	561
1835 The Life of Jesus	561
1837 Polemical Writings	562
1838 "On the Transient and Permanent in Christianity"	566

1839 "Schleiermacher und Daub"	577
History: Constitutive or Merely a Place Holder of 'Indifference'?	583
Daub's 'Argument for God:'	585
Strauß' Criticism of Daub's 'Argument for God:'	587
1841 The Glaubenslehre . An 'Epistemological' Conclusion	590
Significance of Baur's work on Atonement for Understanding Church History	591
On the Metaphysics of the Glaubenslehre	600
1864: The Life of Jesus Examined for the German People . 'Natural' Moral Duty	614
1865 The Christ of Faith and the Jesus of History :	624
No Ultimate, Infinite, Eminent Causality	624
1872 of The Old and the New Faith	627
A bottom-up Grand Narrative of Materialism	627
Limited Knowledge and Limited Reason: A New Faith	628
1) Strauß' commitment to the physical sciences is unequivocal here, but it is indicated, ironically, by a citation that he makes to Tertullian. Speaking of the 'soul,' Strauß writes:	635
2) Strauß is even more clear at the end of his life that, historically, little is known of Jesus:	636
Strauß' Ethics in 1872	646
Chapter 6: Grand Narratives of Theoretical Reason Nullify Practical Reason	651
Chapter Overview	651
Hegel and Strauß on 'Theoretical Reason'	652
I. Critique	658
Kant's Critique is Discernment of Conditions for Understanding Strauß' Metaphysics in the Glaubenslehre : The Dialectical Logic of Negation as Ultimate, Causal Explanation	666
II. Absolute Knowledge	671
a) Theoretical Reason's Anthropomorphic Analogy rather than Absolute Knowledge:	672
b) A Flight of Fantasy in a Vacuum:	678
c) Kant's Reflecting judgment, not Hegelian Absolute Knowledge	692
d) Hegel and Kant on Nature and Freedom	697
Addendum: On 20 th C 'Critique' and the 'End of Metaphysics'	707

Chapter 7: Practical Reason Elevates Theoretical Reason within Reason's Limits	721
Chapter Overview	721
Kant's Practical Reason: A Contrast To Hegel's Account of Kant	722
Hegel's Issue with Sensuality in Contrast to Kant's	724
Hegel's Account of 'The Moral View of the World' is not Kant's Morality	727
Hegel's Deeper Conundrum than Ethical Failure	730
Strauß on Kant in the LJ in Agreement with Hegel	732
Strauß on Kant's Practical Reason	734
Thematic Analysis of Strauß' Reading of Kant' Practical Reason	734
I) Kant's 'Subjective' Philosophy:	736
1) Kant is an epistemological relativist:	736
2) Kant has an ontological gap between moral duty and ethical achievement:'	740
3) Strauß' account of Kant's 'revolution of moral disposition' profoundly distorts Kant's 'new creature:'	742
4) Kant's notion of the 'moral improvement of the species is given a new meaning by Strauß.	745
II) Kant's 'Empty Ideas:'	754
Kant: Ought comes not from 'Holiness of the Law' but Autonomous Freedom	758
III) Freedom is only Freedom-from for Strauß:	759
1) Kant on Freedom	762
2) Kant on the Unity of Theoretical and Practical Reason	763
IV) Evil as a Causality:	768
Neither Autonomous Freedom nor Evil in Themselves are Determining Causes in Kant	772
V) Moral Consequentialism:	775
1) Kant is no Consequentialist	786
2) Kant's 'Respect for the Law'	797
3) Kant on Future Prognostication	800
Conclusion	802
Chapter 8: Strauß' Kant Reading Over His Career: Misleading Mentors and Inadequate Influence of Friends	805
Chapter Overview	805
The Pre-figured Reading that Shaped Strauß' Understanding of Kant	805

On Strauß' Understanding of Kant	810
I) Strauß' view of Kant in The Life of Jesus Critically Examined	810
1) Hegel's Reclined Plato and Kant as a 'Subjectivist'	811
α) On Hegel's singular, supposedly 'objective' and a priori, synthetic judgment:	816
β) On Hegel's Bifurcation of Theoretical and Practical Reason:	816
2) Strauß has no grasp of what Kant means by 'critique'	820
3) Religion is morality that is 'grounded' only in 'empty ideas:'	820
α) Hegel's Athanasianism and Strauß' Arianism: A Difference in 'Level' of Divinization	823
B) A Misreading of Kant's Religion and Christology	825
γ) Neither Happiness nor Pleasing God, but Worthiness of Happiness in History	830
δ) The learly Strauß and Hegel: A Call out of History	831
4) Sensuousness is evil	832
5) Kant claimed no role for the resurrection and ascension of Christ.	836
6) Strauß misunderstands moral perfection in Kant	839
7) Kant's exclusive focus was on the individual, not on the species	841
8) Kant: Claimed moral principles are derived from the scriptures but, actually, projected morality onto the past.	841
9) Kant provides no accounting for the rise of religion and scriptures	846
II) Strauß' Presentation of Carl Daub's Reading of Kant	851
1) Kant the Despiser of Reason and Science:	852
2) Autonomous Freedom is Egocentric Desire and Self-Interest:	855
3) Kant's Internal Contradictions according to Daub:	856
III) Strauß' View of Kant in the Life of Jesus Examined for the German People	857
IV) Kant's Aesthetic Judgment: Distorted by Hegel, Overlooked by Strauß	862
Chapter 9: Missing Aesthetic Judgment	865
Chapter Overview	865
I) Hegel on Apperception and Apprehension	865
II) Hegel on Beauty	868
III) Hegel on the Sublime	870
IV) General Remarks on Kant's Beauty and the Sublime	872
1) On Theoretical and Metaphysical Principles	873

2)	On the Place of Kant's Reflections on Aesthetics in His Corpus	879
V)	Kant on Beauty	885
1)	Beauty Grasped by means of the Four Moments of the 'Logic of Judgment:'	890
2)	On Beauty as Symbol of the Moral:	894
VI)	Kant on the Sublime	894
1)	Sublime Grasped by Means of the Four Moments of the 'Logic of Judgment:'	896
2)	On the 'Mathematical' Sublime:	896
3)	On the 'Dynamical' Sublime:	900
4)	On the Relationship of Beauty and the Sublime to the Moral:	905
VII)	Hegel's Reading of Kant on Beauty and the Sublime. Beauty and the Sublime are not Identical for Kant	908
VIII)	On Hegel's Insistence that Kant's Reason is 'Weak,' 'Barbarous,' and 'Dogmatic' or Hegel's Erroneous Insistence on What Kant 'Must Mean' by Theoretical and Practical Reason	911
	Why Strauß' Failed Kantian Turn Matters	916
	The Significance of Strauß and Kant for Today:	919
	Conclusion: John Dewey and the Enduring Need to De-Mythologize the Hegelian/Straußian Reading of Kant	931
	Chapter Overview	931
	On the Value of Engaging Strauß: Gospel Criticism and Metaphysics	932
	Dewey's Kant Reading Requires De-mythologizing. Just as the Gospels do for Strauß	933
	On Dewey's Proposal of Kant's Prophetic Role in the Rise of Hitler and National Socialism	935
	The Unrecognized & Dangerous 'Third Rail'	937
	On the Role of Nationalism in Dewey's Reflections	942
	On the Distorting Narrative 'Prototypes' in Dewey's Kant Reading	944
	1) On Kant's purported "Two-Kingdom Thesis"	944
	2) On Kant and the Protestant Reformation	947
	3) On Dewey's Anti-Intellectualism	948
	4) On Kant's Thing-in-itself	950
	5) On Hegel's influence on Dewey's Kant Interpretation	951
	6) On Dewey's Hegelian Kant Themes	954
	a) Hegel's "The Moral View of the World"	954
	b) Hegel's Reading of Kant as Freedom Conquering Nature & 'Personality'	955

c) On Humanity's Moral Progress	957
d) Hegel's Invoking Fichte, not Kant, on the State	958
e) 'Ethics' as Adjudicating among merely Self-interests	959
7) On Ignoring of Kant's 'Culture that Promotes the Moral Will'	961
8) On 'Ideas' and 'Categorical Imperatives' as Absolutes, Not arising out of Experience	961
9) On Consequentialism as the 'Work of Reason'	962
10) Dewey suggest that "[a]n international judicial tribunal will break in the end upon the principle of national sovereignty."	963
11) On Kant's Influence as Professional, Not Human	964
12) On Kant's 'Pure' Religion	967
Vol. II Appendix I: „Likely ‘Historical’ Elements of Jesus’ Life”	975
Introduction	975
Likely Historical Elements of Jesus' Life and Teaching	979
Vol. II Appendix II: Annotated ‘First’ Testament Concordance to, and Classical Legend References in, the ‘Second’ Testament Gospels	983
Vol. II Appendix III: Grounds for Skepticism in Christian Doctrine. "The Threat" to Christianity is not the Life of Jesus but the Glaubenslehre?	1003
Strauß Ignored Kant's Methodology of Skepticism	1004
Doubts raised by the Glaubenslehre	1006
Themes that Demonstrate Limits to Reason	1006
Appendix IV: Poems Published Posthumously	1013
Works Cited	1015
Strauß' Works	1015
Historical Reader in Volume I	1016
General Literature	1017
Author Index	1031
Subject Index	1063

