

Contents

---

Acknowledgement .....	7
I. Introduction .....	9
II. Destabilizing Meaning .....	41
1. The Textures of History .....	41
2. What is the script of your time? .....	42
2.1 I am everything and now what? .....	52
3. Economies of the Double-bind .....	59
3.1 ADS IMITATE ART, ART IMITATES LIFE, and LIFE IMITATES ADS. ....	64
3.2 The Economy of Blackness in Unbranded .....	66
III. Historical Entanglements of Black Revolutionary Women .....	89
1. De-Interpellating Interpellation—Visual Disobediences .....	89
2. How do I look? (Very good, I must say I am amazed!) .....	92
3. O my Body, will always remain in question!— Reviewing the Fanonian Moment .....	104
3.1 The Colonial Gaze .....	105
3.2 Entanglements .....	110
IV. Heterotemporality as a Way of Understanding the Contemporary .....	113
1. Reclaiming our time .....	113
2. Riffs on Real Time and the present that is fleeting though captured .....	116
2.1 Possible Presents .....	121
3. Rewind Selecta .....	123
4. Hetero-temporality .....	125
V. Paradox Synchronicities .....	129
1. Contextualization .....	129
2. IWHISHIWAS or WISHIWASHI ? .....	134
2.1 Taking a Closer Look .....	135
2.2 Disposed Desires .....	136
2.3 Retrospective Introspectives .....	139
2.4 Visual and Temporal Polyphonies .....	142
3. From Leitkultur to Leightkultur .....	143

VI. Abstract Facts .....	155
1. Enter and Exit the New Negro .....	155
1.1 Quare—"Built in History" .....	158
2. Enter and Exit the New Negro—From Invisible Visibilities .....	160
2.1 (Qu-)hair Politics and Material Connections .....	162
3. Enter the New Negro .....	165
3.1 Exit the New Negro .....	167
4. Ambiguity as Chance—Abstraction as Means of Identity .....	169
4.1 hidin' like thieves in the night from life, Illusions of oasis makin' you look twice .....	172
4.2 Norman Lewis—the not quite "invisible man" of abstract expressionism .....	173
4.3 Playing by the Rules—Turn off the light! .....	178
VII. Post-Post-black .....	183
VIII. Bibliography .....	193