

Contents

Acknowledgements 9

Introduction 11

Part I: Theoretical Foundations

1. Framing Critical Animal Studies 21

1.1 The Emergence of CAS: A Historical Overview 21

 1.1.1 Before CAS: Animal Rights and the Left 24

1.2 CAS and Intersectionality 33

 1.2.1 Ecofeminism: A Cultural Logic for Intersectionality 39

1.3 CAS and Anti-Capitalism: Marxist Approaches 45

 1.3.1 CAS and the Frankfurt School 48

 1.3.2 CAS and (Post-)Operaismo 54

2. A Materialist Logic for Capitalist Societies 57

2.1 Reading Marx Anew 57

2.2 The Method of Form-Analysis and Social Forms 69

2.3 Dispositifs and Politics 82

Part II: Operationalization

3. The Anthropological Form of Producing Individuals 105

3.1 Filling the Lacuna: Forms of Production of Individuals 105

3.2 Anthropological Form: Producing Individuals as Human 114

4. The Dietary Dispositif 123

4.1 Dispositifs of the Anthropological Form 123

4.2 The Dietary Dispositif: Beginning with the Slaughterhouse 125

4.2.1	Excursus: Abattoir or Packinghouse? A False Dilemma	134
4.3	Industrial Farming: An Interlude	136
4.4	Notes on Pre-Capitalist Slaughter	143
4.5	Forming the Dietary Dispositif : Context and Knowledges	145
4.5.1	Context Analysis: Slaughterhouse Reforms in the Conflict between Health and Wealth	145
4.5.2	Knowledge I: Meat and Nutrition Science	148
4.5.3	Knowledge II: Animals and Miasma Theory	154
4.5.4	Knowledge III: Meat, Animals, and Bacteriology	162
4.6	Politics: Actor Analysis in the Struggle for Slaughterhouse Reforms	169
4.6.1	The National-Social Hegemony Project: Hygienists and Animal Advocates	169
4.6.2	The Conservative Hegemony Project: Butchers	174
4.6.3	The Liberal Hegemony Project: Meatpacking Companies	176
4.6.4	Escape Strategies: Animals	176
4.6.5	Process Analysis	179
Conclusion		181
Bibliography		189