

Dirk Lanzerath, Aurélie Halsband (eds.)
The Rediscovery of Bioethics

Dirk Lanzerath is a professor of philosophy at Universität Bonn, where he leads the German Reference Centre for Ethics in the Life Sciences (DRZE). He also serves as a secretary general of the European Network of Research Ethics Committees (EU-REC). As an expert in medical ethics, he is deputy chairman of the Central Ethics Committee at the German Medical Association (ZEKO). His research projects address new ethical issues in artificial intelligence, modern brain research, bioeconomics, and biodiversity.

Aurélie Halsband is head of the Scientific Department of the German Reference Centre for Ethics in the Life Sciences (DRZE) at Universität Bonn. Her research addresses ethical implications of emerging biotechnologies and artificial intelligence, as well as the normative foundations of intergenerational justice and sustainability.
