

Contents

Acknowledgements	11
1 Introduction	13
Challenging Times.....	17
Ethics for the Future: From Humanism to Posthumanism	23
Ethical Criticism in the 21 st Century	25
Aesthetics for the Future: Popular Future Fictions.....	26
The Chapters	31
2 Ethics for the Future through Fiction	35
A Difficult Heritage: Humanism and Beyond	36
New Ethics for a New Age: Hans Jonas.....	39
Deconstruction, Ethics, and the Anthropocene: Joanna Zylińska	42
Towards Posthumanist Ethics	44
Actual Worlds and Possible Futures in Fiction	49
Existing Ethical Approaches to Literature	50
Ethical Criticism in Film	52
Limitations of Existing Approaches	54
Future Ethical Criticism: Worlds in the Making.....	56
3 Future World Ecologies: Kim Stanley Robinson's New York 2140 (2017) and James Cameron's Avatar (2009)	65
A Political World-Ecology Approach: Kim Stanley Robinson's New York 2140	71
Back to "Nature" in James Cameron's Avatar	85
Conclusion	98

4 Transhumanist Futures: Christopher Nolan's
Interstellar (2014) and Wally Pfister's Transcendence (2014)	101
Transhumanist Ethics in Christopher Nolan's Interstellar	104
Philosophical Essentialism: Futuristic Technologies and The Human
in Wally Pfister's Transcendence	117
Conclusion	130
5 Futuristic Digital Neoliberalism: Spike Jonze's Her (2013) and Dave
Eggers's The Circle (2013)	133
The Self and the Other in Digital Neoliberalism: Relationships and Identities in Spike Jonze's Her	136
The Economy of Attention in Dave Eggers's The Circle	149
Conclusion	166
6 Biopolitics of the Future: Kazuo Ishiguro's Never Let Me Go (2006) and Don
DeLillo's Zero K (2016)	169
The Biopolitics of Health in an Alternative Past:
Knowing and Not Knowing in Kazuo Ishiguro's Never Let Me Go	172
A Futuristic Present: The Power over Life and Death in Don DeLillo's Zero K	188
Conclusion	204
7 More than Human?: Threats of AI in Dennis Villeneuve's Blade Runner 2049
(2017) and Alex Garland's Ex_Machina (2014)	209
“To Be Born Is to Have a Soul, I Guess.” Reproduction and Human(e)ness
in Dennis Villeneuve's Blade Runner 2049	212
Reflecting the Speculative Spectacle: Alex Garland's Ex_Machina	226
Conclusion	239
8 Posthumanist Futures: Margaret Atwood's MaddAddam Trilogy (2003, 2006,
2013) and Paolo Bacigalupi's The Windup Girl (2009)	241
Ethics through Metafiction: Storytelling in Margaret Atwood's MaddAddam Trilogy	243
Non-human Agents and Posthumanist Ethics in Paolo Bacigalupi's
The Windup Girl	262
Conclusion	278
9 Contemporary Imaginaries of the Future	281
Ethical Openness versus Closure	283
Unmaking Capitalist Futures	286

Otherworlds of the Future 288
Speculative Realism 291
Works Cited 295

