

Julian Wacker

BLACK BRITISH MUSIC VIDEO

Grime Culture, the Ends, and the Neoliberal City

[transcript] Postcolonial Studies

Julian Wacker
Black British Music Video

Editorial

Postcolonial research has brought critical perspectives on colonialism in history and its heritage nowadays into public and scholarly focus. Similarly, postcolonial theorists have shown how deeply European scholarship and education are intertwined with the history and present of colonialism. For quite some time now, this postcolonial critique has triggered important public debates on the colonial past and how it should be remembered. The series Postcolonial Studies offers an editorial platform to continue these important discussions in an interdisciplinary framework.

Julian Wacker is a scholar in anglophone literary and cultural studies with a distinct focus on Black British cultural production. He holds a PhD from the University of Münster/Germany and works as a teacher in secondary education.

Julian Wacker

Black British Music Video

Grime Culture, the Ends, and the Neoliberal City

[transcript]

Bibliographic information published by the Deutsche Nationalbibliothek

The Deutsche Nationalbibliothek lists this publication in the Deutsche Nationalbibliografie; detailed bibliographic data are available online at <https://dnb.dnb.de>

2026 © transcript Verlag, Bielefeld

Hermannstraße 26 | D-33602 Bielefeld | live@transcript-verlag.de

The automated analysis of the work in order to obtain information, particularly concerning patterns, trends, and correlations as defined in § 44b (text and data mining) of the German Copyright Act (UrhG) is prohibited without the written consent of the rights holders.

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reprinted or reproduced or utilized in any form or by any electronic, mechanical, or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, without permission in writing from the publisher.

Cover design: Kordula Röckenhaus

Cover illustration: photograph © Olivia Rose

Printing: Elanders Waiblingen GmbH, Waiblingen

<https://doi.org/10.14361/9783839435779>

Print-ISBN: 978-3-8376-7935-9 | PDF-ISBN: 978-3-8394-3577-9

ISSN of series: 2703-1233 | eISSN of series: 2703-1241

Printed on permanent acid-free text paper.

To those watching from afar /

to those yet to come

Contents

---

|                                                                                                           |     |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 1. Intro: Black British music videos from the ends?                                                | 9   |
| Charting Black British music video                                                                        | 12  |
| Music video as Black audiovisual infrastructure                                                           | 23  |
| The neoliberal city as shared imaginary                                                                   | 29  |
| The ends as beginnings: Journeying along                                                                  | 32  |
| Moving with music videos, moving through this book                                                        | 36  |
| 2. Unruly council estates: Grime music video, boys in the corner, and audiovisual sampling     | 39  |
| Council estates and clandestine infrastructures in Black British imaginaries                              | 42  |
| Boy In Da Corner : Spatial density, Dizzee Rascal's first album, and grime music video             | 44  |
| Dizzee Rascal's "Sirens": Orgreave Estate as a neoliberal hunting ground                                  | 50  |
| "Blue Lights" X "Sirens": Unbuilding the estate as archetype in Jorja Smith's music video                 | 59  |
| Conclusion: Unruling the 'iconic ghetto' in and through music video                                       | 70  |
| 3. Making the manor: Sites of encounter in Kano's "T-Shirt Weather in the Manor" and "Trouble" | 75  |
| Hood, ends, manor: Audiovisual sites of encounter in Kano's art                                           | 77  |
| VHS footage: From pirate radio filmmaking to grime's faux-documentary realism                             | 81  |
| Who is looking in? Sites of encounter in "T-Shirt Weather in the Manor"                                   | 85  |
| "Trouble": Mourning in the manor                                                                          | 93  |
| Conclusion: A metafictional strand in Black British music video?                                          | 99  |
| 4. On lockdown: Pandemic cityscapes and racial suffocation                                     | 103 |
| Empty streets and viral (tr)ends: Music video responses to the coronavirus                                | 105 |
| Social air: Racial suffocation, British infrastructural necropolitics, and COVID-19                       | 107 |
| Bob Vylan's "Northern Line": Hastening through pandemic Camden and (after-)witnessing racial suffocation  | 111 |
| "Roundtown": Curfew time and the right to move                                                            | 119 |
| Conclusion: Uncommon times, common(s) suffering                                                           | 123 |

|                                                                                                                            |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 5. Kojey Radical's Black 'urban' minstrelsy: Translocal ends, the private mansion, and home invasion                | 125 |
| Radical's Black 'urban' minstrelsy: Genealogies and contemporary phantasmas                                                | 128 |
| "Bambu": Commodities and codifications                                                                                     | 134 |
| "After Winter": Unearthing imperial specters in the private mansion                                                        | 140 |
| Conclusion: Routing the ends along the Black Atlantic                                                                      | 154 |
| 6. Birmingham Ghoul: Scarlxrd's post-digital art and audiovisual anarchitecture amidst the neoliberal heartland | 157 |
| Black Sabbath for the post-industrial age? Uneasy musical genealogies                                               | 159 |
| The post-digital city, technology, and Blackness                                                                           | 162 |
| Scarlxrd's Black half-ghoul, capitalism, and schizophrenia                                                                 | 165 |
| Reading Vanilla Sky and neoliberal meat spaces in "Heart Attack"                                                    | 172 |
| Breaking down Birmingham, breaking down the self: Audiovisual anarchitecture and Black aesthetics of the cut               | 176 |
| Conclusion: The medium is the message is the subject?                                                                      | 186 |
| 7. Outro: Toward the ends                                                                                       | 189 |
| Surrounding the neoliberal fort: Britain in the break                                                                      | 194 |
| The post-production of space                                                                                               | 198 |
| Loose ends                                                                                                                 | 202 |
| Acknowledgments                                                                                                 | 205 |
| Figures                                                                                                         | 207 |
| Videography                                                                                                     | 209 |
| Works Cited                                                                                                     | 213 |
| Notes                                                                                                           | 233 |